The students replaced regular employees at all non-cooking positions from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Money taken in by the restaurant during those hours (less costs) will go into the NHS scholarship fund. Juniors Dave Louis, right, and Dean Stockwell look at the mountain of strawberries that must be cleaned before going into pie and shortcake. Last year the project netted $500.

Nixon won't pay taxes voluntarily

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional staffers have concluded that President Nixon owes substantially more than the $78,651 tax he paid during his first term, sources close to the inquiry say.

The sources also said Nixon has decided against paying additional tax voluntarily. Such a suggestion was made publicly by Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., vice chairman of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, which is looking into the President's taxes.

Instead, White House lawyers have asked to argue the President's case before the committee, a request expected to be granted, the sources said.

The Nixon tax lawyers contend that legal authorities can legitimately differ and that they should be heard in opposition to any adverse conclusions, sources said.

The staff anticipates submitting its report on Nixon's taxes for the years 1969 through 1972 to the committee within a week. The President had income totaling more than $1 million during those years.

Whether the committee calls witnesses and holds public hearings on questions of fact has not been determined, the sources said.

The biggest single item in the controversy on Nixon's taxes is his deduction for a gift of papers valued at $576,000. A key question is whether the gift was made before a July 25, 1969 deadline for making such tax-deductible gifts.

A new appraisal of the papers has put a much lower value on them so that Nixon might owe some tax even if the donation is ruled valid, the sources said.

However, one source said that nothing he had seen convinced him that the donation qualifies under the law.

The staff report is understood to cover also such questions as whether Nixon should have paid capital gains tax on the profits from sale of his New York apartment and a portion of his San Clemente, Calif., property.

The report also is understood to cover his claimed deductions of part of the expenses of the San Clemente establishment on the basis of official use, and several other items involving smaller sums.

Find man guilty in children's deaths

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The Circuit Court jury that convicted Ernest John Dobbert Jr. in the death of his 9-year-old daughter and 7-year-old son next decides the penalty.

Dobbert faces electrocution or life in prison for the first degree murder conviction handed down Friday in the death of his daughter.

A jury of seven women and five men also convicted Dobbert of second degree murder in the death of his son and of torture and child abuse in the mistreatment of two surviving children.

Ford plans layoffs

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Ford will idle 14,200 workers at nine plants, including one at Lima, Ohio, for one or two weeks next month in a new round of production cutbacks, spokesmen said Friday.

For six days, Debbie sat and slept near his side.

She was there at 7:45 a.m., March 8, when her boyfriend died.

Police earlier had charged Manuel C. Medina Jr. with assault with intent to commit murder. They said the charge has now been changed to first-degree murder.

"We had been going together for two years — almost since the time I met him," Debbie said. "We had been planning to get married on Saturday — when he turned 18."

"Amos kept pleading with the man to leave the woman alone, then he jumped on top of the man and pulled him off of her."

"I helped the woman get up and she kept yelling that she had to get out of here. Then the man started to take off and Amos came up to me."

"He started to hug me. He said Debbie ... honey."

Then he collapsed in his fiancée's arms. He had been stabbed in the heart.

Two minutes later, police cars crowded the area. Officers rushed young Brown to County Hospital, one mile away.

For six days following surgery, Amos clung to life.

Highland man gets life in store slaying

HILLSBORO — Douglas Howland, 22, of Greenfield, was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Ohio State Penitentiary Friday in the slaying of a merchant at rural Bridges last Nov. 12.

Howland pleaded guilty to second degree murder before Judge Darrell Hottle in Highland County Common Pleas Court. He had been charged with murder during the perpetration of a robbery, a capital offense, but was permitted to plead guilty to the lesser offense on the recommendation of Prosecutor John O. Crouse.

A second suspect in the case, David Bennett, also 22 and of Greenfield, will go on trial April 8 in the shotgun slaying of Joseph C. Barrett, 72, at his country store in Bridges.

Reaction to Guard indictments mixed

8 named in KSU slayings

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The father of one student killed at Kent State University in 1970 reacted with "a mixture of sorrow and relief" to Friday's indictment of eight national guardsmen accused in the deaths.

"There is no happiness in this matter," added Arthur Krause of Pittsburgh, Pa. His daughter, Allison, 19, was one of four students killed May 4, 1970, during a burst of gunfire that ended a campus confrontation between students and guardsmen.

But Ralph W. Zoller of Mantua, Ohio, whose son was indicted, said he found it ridiculous.

"This whole thing is stupid," he added.

Others killed when guardsmen broke up the protest against U.S. involvement in Cambodia were Jeffrey Miller, 20, Plainview, N.J.; Sandy Lee Scheuer, 20, Youngstown, Ohio; and William Schroeder, 19, Lorain, Ohio.

The federal grand jury, which began work last Dec. 18, accused one present and eight former Ohio national guardsmen of willfully depriving the four dead and nine wounded students of their Constitutional rights.

Those named in the three-count indictment were Sgt. Mathew J. McManus, 28, West Salem, Ohio, presently a member of the National Guard, and the following former guardsmen: Lawrence A. Shafer, 28, Ravenna, Ohio; James D. McGee, 27, Ravenna; William E. Perkins, 28, Canton, Ohio; James E. Pierce, 29, Amelia Island, Fla.; Ralph W. Zoller, 27, Mantua, Ohio; Barry W. Morris, 29, Kent, Ohio; and Leon H. Smith, Beach City, Ohio.

Sarah Scheuer of Youngstown, mother of one victim, said it was heartening "that there is some chance that the system works."

And Maj. John E. Martin of Wooster, commander of A Company, 145th Infantry, reminded that "these young men have civil rights, too." His unit was one of those from which the gunfire came.

"I'm wondering if anybody is looking after them," he added.

A Justice Department spokesman said the defendants would be summoned for arraignment, scheduled for April 10, but would not be arrested.

Conviction under the criminal charges could bring penalties ranging from a year's imprisonment and a $10,000 fine up to life in prison in those instances in which death resulted from the action.

The 590-word indictment capped 39 days of jury work that included three days of secret deliberations—uncommonly long for deciding recommendations in a civil rights case, a Justice Department spokesman said.

The 22 jurors, 19 of whom were present Friday in court, pored over what a federal judge said was about 6,500 pages of transcript, testimony of 173 witnesses, and 250 documents that included scores of photographs, a 100-page Ohio National Guard report and an 8,000-page FBI report of probes into the shootings.

The 13 seconds of ragged gunfire, that left the four dead and nine wounded, erupted shortly after noon on that spring day.

Guardsmen firing volleys of teargas and shouting demonstrators hurling rocks and other objects had maneuvered back and forth, the guardsmen once finding themselves fenced into a dead end.

Then some members of the Guard

units advancing up a hill toward the protest rally's crowd fired, and the 13 students fell.

All the defendants were members of those units at the time.

The indictment charged that Shafer, McGee, Perkins, Pierce and Zoller, "aiding and abetting each other," fired .30-caliber M1 rifles "at, over, into and in the direction of" 12 of the victims. The five were the only ones charged under two federal laws and the only ones against whom the aiding and abetting charge was leveled.

Morris was charged with firing a .45-caliber automatic pistol at or near demonstrators, and McManus and Smith were charged with firing 12-gauge shotguns.

Dana Stewart, Ohio adjutant general, said he was "sorry to see these charges brought" and added that they show only that the jurors "in their own minds found reason for further action."

McGee, one of those indicted, said he would have "plenty to say, and I will say it," but only after consulting an attorney.

Several other defendants declined comment before consulting lawyers.

The jury was the first such federal panel to probe the shootings. The shootings climaxed a series of demonstrations which began May 1, 1970, and included the burning of a campus military building.

Atty. Gen. Elliott Richardson requested the grand jury probe, reversing a 1971 decision by then-Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

A presidential commission which studied the Kent State and similar protests called the shootings inexcusable and unnecessary.

An Ohio grand jury, however, found the guardsmen blameless and indicted 25 others, mostly students. Of these indictments three led to guilty pleas or verdicts, one was dismissed, one found innocent, and the rest were dropped by the state for lack of evidence.

The federal jurors were not dismissed after they returned the indictments. A Justice Department spokesman said the jury would remain empaneled until the chief federal judge here is satisfied there is no more work for it.

Still pending as a result of the shootings are a series of civil suits filed by parents of three of the four students killed. The suits are against former Gov. James A. Rhodes, who ordered the troops to the campus; ex-Kent State President Robert White, now a teacher at the college; and five Guard officials. The suits seek about $12 million in damages.

Food prices may decline this spring

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 4 per cent drop in raw farm product prices in late winter may mean some springtime bargains for food shoppers, but choices may be limited.

The decline, reported Friday by the Agriculture Department, covered all farm products and included many items which do not go directly into groceries such as corn, soybeans and hay.

But meat animals, one of the most important consumer categories, showed a price drop of 8 per cent from Feb. 15 to March 15. Some of those products, especially beef, already have shown up as lower priced specials at retail counters.

Even so, farm prices frequently are volatile. They gyrated wildly last summer, after the Nixon administration eased store price curbs, and then declined for three months before starting another round of increases that lasted most of the winter.

However, the report Friday included a hint that retail food price increases may be slowing. As of March 15, it said, food prices paid by farm families were up 1.5 per cent from a month earlier.

Although USDA economists say the report's food price figure is not as reliable as other government statistics gathered specially for that purpose, it did give some idea that consumers saw supermarket price gains slow a bit in March.

Here is why: a month ago, a similar farm price report said food prices went up 4.0 per cent from Jan. 15 to Feb. 15. When the Bureau of Labor Statistics issued its February prices for store-bought food, those were shown to have risen 3.0 per cent.

In addition to the downturn in meat animal prices, the farm report Friday also showed consumers might expect some other breaks.

Nixon fund trustees squabble

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two trustees of President Nixon's surplus campaign funds say they told the third trustee — Maurice H. Stans — they would resign if a policy on payment of legal fees for former campaign officials was not changed.

Trustees Charles E. Potter and Guilford Dudley Jr. said Stans, on trial in New York on federal conspiracy and perjury charges, did not object when they informed him of their intentions by telephone a week ago.

But Potter, in a telephone interview Friday, said it apparently came as a surprise to the former Commerce secretary who suggested "let's turn it over to the lawyers."

"I said, 'It's going to be done or else you're going to lose a couple of trustees,'" Potter said.

Dudley said, "I told Stans if it wasn't done I'd resign. He said, 'Well, it will never come to that.'"

Dudley, a Nashville, Tenn., insurance executive, and Potter, a Washington businessman and former U.S. senator from Michigan, became trustees with Stans of a $3.5 million Nixon campaign surplus last month when the Finance Committee to Re-elect the President closed its books.

Stans had headed the committee from its inception in early 1972.

Under a policy adopted in April 1973, before the flood of Watergate revelations began or any indictments were handed up, the finance committee decided to pay all legal expenses of any former official up until indictment.

The trust agreement, signed Feb. 11, expanded this to include reimbursement of expenses for anybody found innocent of a felony and added a provision allowing trustees to pay the expenses for someone found guilty of a misdemeanor.

In interviews earlier this month, both Dudley and Potter said they were not aware when they signed the trust agreement that it contained any change from previous policy.

Dudley and Potter said new language they have given to the trust lawyers eliminates payment of expenses upon conviction for a misdemeanor. It also empowers the trustees to deny reimbursement to a former official who is acquitted of felony charges on a legal technicality where the circumstances point, in the trustees' opinion, to guilt.

The new language also specifically bars Stans from taking part in any decision involving payment of his own legal fees. On trial with Stans on charges arising from a secret $200,000 campaign contribution is former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, who was political chief of the campaign.

Cook said Stans caused him to eliminate reference to Vesco's campaign contribution from the civil fraud complaint and also tried to stop the filing of transcripts of testimony which would have revealed the contribution.

In addition, he said that Stans had admitted to him that he had lied to the grand jury and had tacitly suggested that Cook do the same.

Devastating floods hammer at Brazil; fear 1,000 dead

TUBARAO, Brazil (AP) — Soldiers patrolled for looting and doctors watched for possible typhoid outbreaks as this coastal city began counting its losses from devastating floods that have swept nine Brazilian states.

There were no official nationwide estimates of the death toll, but the mayor of Tubarao said as many as 1,000 were dead in his city alone. Civil defense officials gave the known toll as 42.

Newspapers estimated nationwide damage to crops and livestock at up to $400 million. Thousands were left homeless.

Tubarao, a city of 100,000 in southern Santa Catarina province, suffered more damage than any other area in the two weeks of torrential rains that

Vesco witness admits to previous lies

John R. Wing, Cook admitted he had lied on his first two appearances before the grand jury. Then, he said, he told Stans he was going to "tell it like it was" and told the truth on his third grand jury appearance.

But under questioning by defense lawyers Walter Bonner and Peter Fleming Jr., Cook admitted he had also lied on his third appearance. Cook admitted that he had also lied in three appearances before Congressional committees, twice under oath.

He said one of his lies was in telling a Senate committee the SEC complaint against Vesco was slated for redrafting before its details were made known to Stans.

Cook said he also might have lied during two White House interviews, one with Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. and another with presidential counsel Leonard Garment.

Bonner asked Cook why he had lied. "Was it out of respect for Mr. Stans? Affection for Mr. Stans? Loyalty to the Republican party? Loyalty to the President? Because Mrs. Stans was ill at the time and almost died in November?"

Judge Lee P. Gagliardi sustained a government objection and would not let Cook answer.

But when Wing, the government lawyer, got another crack at Cook, he asked: "Why did you lie?"

Gagliardi at first sustained a defense objection. But he changed his mind after the prosecution argued, with the jury out of the room, that "the government should be allowed to rehabilitate a witness whose credibility has been attacked."

Finally allowed to answer, Cook said he had lied for two basic reasons.

"Number one, as a result of my conversations with Mr. Stans and, number two, I did not want to bring any discredit or dishonor to the commission as to the fact that I had these conversations with Mr. Stans."

Deadline is scheduled by ASCS for conservation sign-up

The sign-up for area farmers to start conservation work under long-term agreements on federal cost sharing may be made on or before April 5, 1974. George Speakman, chairman of the Fayette County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service

(ASCS) reported.

Speakman said the long term agreement—3 to 10 years—is a provision of the new Rural Environmental Conservation Program (RECP) announced by the U.S. Department of Agriculture last December. He said the opportunities are very extensive under the long-term agreements because they guarantee funds for a number of years, and will deal with the widest variety of rural conservation practices for the public benefit on record.

However, the program requires that the farmer come in on or before April 5 to sign up, that he bring an approved conservation plan for his farm, and that he be able to assure starting his development this year.

The RECP conservation measures will take into account all aspects of soil and water conservation, effects on near-by areas, and the needs of the areas by man, animals and wild life. Both the Soil Conservation Service and the Forest Service will provide technical services and planning assistance.

Speakman said approval of long-term agreements will be on a priority basis because funds will be limited for this year and must come from the regular allocated RECP funds this year for Fayette County. The cost sharing has been set at 50 per cent to 75 per cent on all costs incurred, including labor.

The sign-up from March 18 to April 5 does not apply to the one-year agreements or the forestry incentive practices of the RECP. However, Speakman said the ASCS office also encourages other farmers and landowners to sign up for these two programs as early as possible because of the late start this year.

The opportunities in the program are available without regard to race, color, creed, national origin or sex.

Report shows 16 per cent of income spent for food

Recently released USDA figures show that on the average Americans still spend less than 16 per cent of their after-tax incomes on food. Many budget conscious families don't believe this can be true, and for some families it is not, according to Lois Simonds, Extension economist at Ohio State University.

Actually, many families do spend a greater proportion than this for food as they strive to have nutritious and satisfying meals and snacks. The 16 per cent figure represents the proportion of the nation's overall disposable income that is spent for food. It is derived by dividing the total income after taxes into total food expenditures.

THE 16 per cent figure is an average and, like all averages, there are many deviations from it. There are very wealthy families who spend a considerably smaller proportion of their incomes for food, as well as many poor families who spend a much larger part of their incomes for food items.

Another reason the 16 per cent figure is less than some families would expect is because it also includes the income and expenditures of nonprofit institutions which spend little, if anything, for food. Also, non-money incomes such as net rental values of owner-occupied houses and the value of food and fuel produced and used on the farm are included. This increases the total disposable income of the nation, which acts to lower the proportionate food spending, Simonds reveals.

Often families include such non-food items as soap, paper products, tobacco, and alcoholic beverages in their food budgets. These were not included when the USDA calculated the per cent of income spent for food.

The 16 per cent figure is not meant to represent the normal or average food spending. It is used to determine trends in national food spending, the economist points out.

The proportion of income used for food is affected by several factors—

Ohio scientists release new inbred corn lines

WOOSTER — Two new inbred corn lines with significantly improved tolerance to two major virus diseases have been released to seed producers and plant breeders by the Ohio corn breeding program. The new inbreds were developed through the cooperative efforts of agronomists of the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center and the Agricultural Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The two new inbred lines are designated Oh 509A (Oh509A) and Oh 513 (Oh513). The research team responsible for their development includes agronomists E.J. Dollinger, OARDC, and W.R. Findley, USDA.

BOTH LINES are among a few which have greater tolerance to maize dwarf mosaic virus (MDMV) and maize chlorotic dwarf virus (MCDV) than inbred lines presently being used in hybrid combinations. It will be several years before farmers start growing hybrids of the new lines — plant breeders and seed producers must first increase the seed supply of the inbreds then combine them in single and double cross hybrids.

Inbred Oh509A was developed by crossing and backcrossing two parent lines, B37 and Oh7B. Findley and Dollinger say B37, an Iowa-developed inbred, is the most widely used public-released corn line in the U.S. because it yields very well over a wide range of growing conditions and combines well to form hybrids. Because of its high susceptibility to MDMV, however, B37 has seen only limited use in hybrids grown in virus-infected areas. The Oh7B inbred was the source of virus tolerance.

The corn breeders report that Oh509A has good tolerance to both MDMV and MCDV. Plants of the new inbred average about 8 inches shorter and have two more and slightly broader leaves than those of inbred B37. Hybrids involving Oh509A have been essentially equal to comparable hybrids involving B37 in yield, standability, grain moisture at harvest, and days to mid-soil.

The development of the other inbred, Oh513, was started a number of years ago by USDA corn breeder G.F. Sprague at Beltsville, Md. Findley and Dollinger continued the effort which involved a series of crosses and backcrosses with an Ohio inbred (Oh07) and a very late-maturing Louisiana inbred (L97).

Oh513 is highly tolerant to MDMV and MCDV and has some tolerance to northern leaf blight caused by Helminthosporium turcicum (a fungus). The inbred flowers about 10 days later than Oh07 but comparable hybrids involving these inbreds are similar in days to maturity and yield. However, hybrids involving Oh513 have inferior stalk quality.

THE OHIO scientists expect Oh509A to be the most widely used of the two new inbreds. However, Oh513 is expected to prove a more desirable breeding source than the Oh07 inbred for developing hybrids resistant to MDMV and MCDV. Both inbred lines are suitable for hybrids which will be grown in the southern half of the corn-belt and southern states.

Seed for Oh509A and Oh513 will be maintained at OARDC and are available to plant breeders and seed

Soybean firm admits guilt at Hillsboro

SOYBEANS, Inc., pleaded guilty in Hillsboro Municipal Court recently to a charge by the Ohio Department of Agriculture of operating an Agricultural Commodity Warehouse without a license.

The commodity warehouse and processing facility at New Vienna, was fined $100 plus court costs.

Gene R. Abercrombie, director of the Ohio Department of Agriculture, said, "Soybeans, Inc. is a previous licensee of the department. We had requested the firm to make certain changes and supply additional financial information about its organization in order to meet the financial requirements under which the facility was licensed."

When this information was not received, the Department notified them to cease operation. Subsequent investigation revealed that the facility was continuing to operate after receipt of the Department's notice. Charges of operating without a license were then filed against the corporation.

"One of the licensing requirements under this program is financial stability to protect grain producers who sell and store their commodities through these facilities. In other words, we must determine that licensees are financially sound and can meet their obligations on demand of farmers and producers who sell commodities to them," Abercrombie said.

The municipal court action does not cancel Soybeans, Inc. eligibility to re-apply for a license if they meet the requirements of state law and regulations of the Department.

The cooperative corn breeding program in Ohio was initiated in 1929. Over the years more than 30 inbred lines of corn have been developed and released for use in commercial hybrids. Goal of the continuing research is development of corn lines capable of yields as high or higher than those now being used and which offer increased genetic resistance to specific insects and diseases.

DOES EVERYTHING BUT KICK THE PAIL OVER — Bessy the Cow, a creation of Mrs. Glenn Estep's and Mrs. Glenn Merritt's combined Jeffersonville first grade classes, recreates the days of making bread and butter and buttermilk. Bessy has eyelashes and a moving tail. All 45 children assisted in her construction.

Jeff pupils learn 'the basics'

By MARK THELLMAN
JEFFERSONVILLE — "They thought milk came from a carton!" said Mrs. Glenn Estep, teacher at Jeffersonville Elementary School when she was asked what prompted her first grade class and the first grade class taught by Mrs. Glenn Merritt to create a life-size, papier mache (pulped paper) cow and have a day of making butter, buttermilk, and bread.

The project originally started for the combined first grade classes totaling 45 pupils at the end of January and culminated this week.

Fred Stires built the cow's wooden frame. Chicken wire was wrapped around it and papier mache followed.

Mrs. Estep explained the cow is painted to resemble a Holstein since this is the largest bred of dairy cow in the country and the most commonly seen, especially in Ohio.

Ron Burke, president of the Holstein Association, serving five counties including Fayette, paid a special visit to the class.

He gave the children and their teachers a plaque — a decoupage Holstein cow — in appreciation for their choosing the Holstein for their model.

THE CHILDREN churned butter and every child had the opportunity to work the dasher and see the butter form. They also kneaded dough and learned about making bread.

Both these activities exposed them to liquid and dry measures — a practical lesson in arithmetic.

Mrs. Estep and Mrs. Merritt both have farm backgrounds. Mrs. Estep

See blacks demanding more power

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson warned the national Democratic party Friday night that blacks will continue to demand proportionate representation.

Black faces and viewpoints have come to office in 105 American cities, but their percentage of the whole is too small, Jackson told a fund raiser for Black Elected Democrats of Ohio.

"The importance of continuing and strengthening that input can hardly be overemphasized. We are engaged in a struggle for our very survival in this nation," Jackson said.

He labeled these times of "increased conservatism and repression" and urged blacks to organize local precincts, counties and states before talking about "delivering" anything on a national scale.

"At this point, many black elected officials are in office in spite of their political organizations, not because of them," he said.

"There is no effort to organize black voters of a specific area and these officials have been elected on the basis of charisma or a burning local issue," Jackson stated.

The recently-elected mayor deplored the fact that Blacks "are rich in ballots" but economically impoverished and unrepresented in countless counties in the "Black Belt of the South."

He said blacks are not swimming in the Watergate scandal because "luckily, this time, we are not included in the high-level wheeling and dealing that runs this country."

Tractor-trailer rig found near Toledo

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—A tractor-trailer rig reportedly stolen while parked in a truck stop, was found Friday in an industrial park south of here. Its cargo of 36,781 pounds of beef, valued at $45,000, was missing.

The driver, Gaylord L. Espich of Fort Wayne, Ind., told FBI agents he left the keys to the unlocked cab while he ate at the truck stop. The shipment was en route from Nebraska to Springfield, Mass.

commented that she had to milk two cows before school every day, and making bread, butter and buttermilk, was far from new.

The two teachers extend their thanks to everyone who helped with the project, especially the teacher's aides: Mrs. Hazel Warnock, Mrs. Joan Straley, Mrs. Peggy Lovett, Mrs. Sue Frazier, Mrs. Marie Stires, Mrs. Ruth Curry, Mrs. Jean Higgins and Mrs. Donna Rayburn.

Mothers giving help were Mrs. James Spargur and Mrs. John Butcher. Jim McDonald and Mrs. Anita Allen helped with the clean-up, and Gordon McCarty, school principal, backed the project enthusiastically.

Cooler air was moving into Ohio Saturday with continuing showers expected to become mixed with snow during the afternoon and night in the northern portions of the state. The National Weather Service said snow accumulations there were unlikely.

Lows tonight were forecast in the 30s and highs Sunday in the 50s and 60s.

Early Saturday a large low pressure area was centered in northwest Ohio moving eastward. Temperatures were forecast to climb into the low 50s north and in the low 60s south before the cooler air moved into the state Saturday afternoon.

Rains were general over Ohio Friday as low pressure approached the state. Columbus had over two inches of rain. Amounts varied to as little as a few hundredths of an inch at Toledo.

Temperatures were also varied from north to south. Toledo had a high of 37 while the upper 60s were reported along the Ohio River.

A chance of showers Monday through Wednesday. Highs in the 50s and 60s, lows in the 40s.

Cincy teachers threaten boycott

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—The Cincinnati Teachers Association is threatening to disrupt classes by boycotting work to attend a mass meeting in an effort to settle its 1974 contract.

Harriet Russell, CTA president, said the organization's Representative Assembly has authorized the mass meeting before April 10. She declined to name the day.

The meeting would begin at 6:30 a.m. and "take half a day," she said. Miss Russell said an agreement is needed by April 8 if teachers are to collect a raise this pay period.

GROWERS STACK THESE TWO UP AGAINST ALL THE OTHERS!!

It's true! No other combination of weed killers works better than this one in corn or soybeans grown on variable soils — soils that vary more than 1% to 2% in organic matter in the same field.

Mix them together in the spray tank and get these advantages:

- controls both broadleaves and grasses
- stops spotty weed control
- easy crop rotation... if corn fails, replant to soybeans
- easy to mix, easy to apply

THE herbicide to start with in corn:

Minimize carryover — and control grasses plus broadleaves with Lasso plus atrazine.

Lasso plus atrazine tank mix controls yellow, green and giant foxtail, fall panicum, pigweed, smartweed, common ragweed and many more grasses and broadleaves; reduces competition from hard-to-control weeds like buttonweed.

And you minimize carryover possibilities. Because Lasso by itself leaves no carryover, and you use less atrazine in the tank mix.

Opinion And Comment

Again: Those tax loopholes

Judicious optimism suggests that this may be the year when Congress will tie off holes in the tax net which allow many wealthy Americans to get by with minimal income taxes or none at all. Reports of how the rich are able to use the tax laws to their advantage always bring talk of reform.

This time around such talk has been given fresh impetus by disclosure of President Nixon's small payments on a large income in 1970 and 1971.

Though his annual income exceeded a quarter of a million dollars, the President paid Internal Revenue well under a thousand in each of those years. In each instance the amount was less than that paid by a $10,000-a-year worker with a wife and two children to support.

The President was able to get off so easily because he claimed a deduction of more than half a million on vice presidential papers turned over to the government. It was all, as the saying goes, "entirely legal."

This is the rubric, too, under which other wealthy citizens annually claim huge deductions. Like the President, they take advantage of special tax law provisions. This always galls ordinary citizens who, finding themselves unable to profit by such provisions, wind up paying more tax than others with incomes several times as large.

The most galling thing of all is the annual disclosure that some people with incomes above $100,000 pay no income tax whatever—not one cent. There were 402 in this category in 1972, it has been disclosed. But that is by no means the whole story: thousands of the wealthy who don't quite avoid income taxes altogether pay only a few hundred dollars.

For the most part, all this falls within the law, yet that is exactly the point: the provisions which make preference income deductions allowable are those "loopholes" one hears about.

While some of the loopholes are more defensible than others, Congress could take one across-the-board action which would at least reduce inequities. It could raise to a more realistic level the minimum tax which must be paid even by those with preference income.

The Senate has done this, but the minimum-tax increase has gotten sidetracked in the Finance Committee. It should be moved out, and approved without further delay.

Meanwhile, the House Ways and Means Committee should be held to its chairman's promise that broad tax reform proposals will be sent to the floor for action at this session.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

Baker in CIA Land

WASHINGTON — Of all the characters in the Watergate drama none rose higher and fell faster than Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee.

What Baker is up to now as his graph drops lower is a mystification as dense as anything that has happened in the great Watergate scandal.

He seems to be trying to put blame on the Central Intelligence Agency for the coverup. He does this by running his own hearings and by bringing Richard Helms back from his ambassadorial post in Iran for a third going-over. That ended, incidentally, with Chairman Sam Ervin, who exercised his right to sit in on Baker's private show, giving Helms a clean bill of health.

In the course of his mystification, Baker waves top secret memoranda which he alone has been allowed to see. But leaks and counter-leaks give clues that serve Baker's purpose if that purpose is indeed to draw in the CIA.

BUT WHY? A widely held belief is that Baker is being nudged by the White House. The nudging agent is Charles W. Colson, one of the seven Watergate figures indicted on March 1 who still keeps a close connection with the White House. Baker denied he is "cooperating" with Colson.

Colson brought in as a White House consultant that compulsive spy, E. Howard Hunt Jr. Hunt's past with the CIA, his work with the White House "plumbers," his intervention in the ITT case, his part in the break-in of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, that is the Byzantine maze Baker professes to be following. One of those convicted for the Watergate break-in, Hunt is free on bond pending an appeal.

Author of the declaration that he would trample on his grandmother if need be to insure Richard Nixon's reelection, Colson in the first flush of the Nixon landslide was a happy man. He would leave the White House to become counsel for the teamsters union at a retainer reported to be $100,000 a year.

Since his indictment he has left the firm, although he continues out of his law office to do business for the teamsters.

A RECENT LAWSUIT filed by James Hoffa, former Teamsters president released from prison on parole by Nixon, charges Nixon and Attorney General William Saxbe with a deal engineered by Colson to deny Hoffa union office until 1980 with a reward for Colson as union counsel.

A party to this arrangement, so the suit charged, was Frank E. Fitzsimmons who became union president after Hoffa went to prison.

As for Colson's motives, that is speculation. If the CIA can be shown to have been a principal partner that will give a certain institutional authority—with in the background the warning that national security must not be infringed—helping those caught in the net. And this will be so not only for Colson but for his friend and colleague at Brown University, Howard Hunt.

The staff of the Ervin committee is now beginning to put together a draft report of the hearings. The final report is not due until May 28, but committee sources say that in light of the thousands of pages of testimony to be combed over this is a short time.

Each senator on the committee will feel obligated to reach his own conclusions and then presumably they will be fused into a common finding.

BAKER'S EXPEDITION into the tortuous reaches of the CIA jungle does not, according to committee sources, come under the terms of the resolution authorizing the Watergate investigation.

The committee was charged with investigating criminal activity in connection with the 1972 elections. Whether the CIA, in furnishing Hunt a red wig and a voice transformer when he started sleuthing the ITT case, comes under his definition is doubtful.

As the ranking Republican on the committee Baker can submit a minority report. But if he should devote this to his private safari into CIA land, the full committee might challenge its relevance.

It is hard to realize that when the sensational hearings were at the top of their television ratings Baker was seriously talked about as a possible Republican presidential candidate.

When he appeared on "Face the Nation" he was not asked a single question about presidential ambitions. But perhaps his reward comes from serving his beleaguered President.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

Being beastly to Brezhnev

The word is out that Moscow is disillusioned by detente. Whether this feeling was generated by the survival of Israel or the refusal of the American government—in this instance Congress—to award the Soviets "Most Favored Nation" status is unclear.

But apparently Leonid Brezhnev feels that President Nixon and Secretary Kissinger let him down. If we had, for example, been genuinely interested in reconciliation, we certainly would not have pressed for basic human rights at the European Security Conference in Geneva.

And the stubborn behavior of our arms negotiators in Vienna, who have been insisting that an American cut in airborne nuclear-delivery systems be matched by a Soviet decrease in intermediate range ballistic missiles, is not good detente form. (As everyone knows, Soviet missiles are defensive in character, while our aircraft are obviously offensive.)

What I am now waiting for is a series of articles, based on State Department or White House backgrounders (interviews with sources not to be identified except as "persons close to Secretary Kissinger," or some such evasion), making the point that we shouldn't be beastly with Brezhnev—that he is the best Soviet dictator we've got.

DON'T LAUGH. There is presently quite a body of argument that President Kennedy ruined Nikita Khrushchev by forcing the latter to pull the missiles out of Cuba. If Kennedy had reflected a bit, the line runs, he would have realized that missiles in Cuba were a small price to pay for the survival of such a genial chap as Khrushchev. But with his usual rashness, Kennedy bounced on Nice Nikita and ruined the First Secretary's standing at the Politburo.

The picture one gets from these Kremlinological psychodramas is that Khrushchev, mobilizing the "doves" on the Politburo and in the Central Committee, kept the "hawks" in check. Thus he was a "force for peace" and his downfall was a blow to all right-thinking people.

Overlooked in this touching tale is the fact that Khrushchev was the Butcher of Budapest, whose reputation as a "dove" derived largely from his de-

Stalinization activities—which were irrelevant to the conduct of foreign affairs.

Once, on a trip to Greece, with that friendly peasant brutality, he reminded the Athens government that playing around with NATO could bring a missile that would take out all their cherished archeological treasures. Perhaps because he chuckled, when he talked about "a hail of rockets," he was classified as a "dove."

Now we are probably going to learn about poor beleaguered Brezhnev, the honest dictator who made the mistake of trusting the United States. From the outset (we will be advised), there were "hawks" in the Politburo who sneered at Brezhnev's naivety—Suslov, for example, has been sharpening his dagger for years.

As the United States became more and more uncooperative (rescuing Israel, for example), Brezhnev was forced to make concessions to these hardliners.

Is it an accident that now the Minister of Defense, Marshal Grechko, and Andropov, the head of the KGB, are full members of the Politburo?

They are hemming Brezhnev in, and if he goes with him. The whole point of this exercise will be that we have a vested interest in Brezhnev's survival.

THERE IS, of course, something to be said for the maxim that the known devil is preferable to the unknown. (It was in this spirit that Russian Jews used to pray for the health of the Czar!) But at the same time it is a manifestation of bureaucratic arteriosclerosis.

If I heard the argument once in Washington, I heard it 50 times: "The alternative to X (Nasser, Franco, De Gaulle, Sukarno, etc.) is chaos." To which I often replied, "What's wrong with chaos?"

This was thinking the unthinkable, but in part I was quite serious: a succession crisis in the Soviet Union, for example, results in a total concentration on domestic affairs, among them personal and bureaucratic survival.

As far as detente is concerned, the Soviets did not participate because they were fond of Mr. Nixon and Henry: they believed it to be in their national interest.

They were right, and if Brezhnev dropped dead tomorrow, I predict his successor would continue the policy. The real brawl inside the Politburo must center on China and, give the Soviet strategy of avoiding a two-front war, detente makes real military sense.

One can even visualize the Politburo "hawks" criticizing Brezhnev for getting mixed up in marginal sidishows like the Middle East when he should be clobbering Peking!

In short, let's not have any favorite Soviet dictator. We're not in that game.

INCIDENTALLY, WHAT ARE YOU DOING WITH THE MONEY YOU'RE SAVING ON GASOLINE?

Haile Selassie eyes corruption

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Emperor Haile Selassie, trying to avert his second major crisis in a month, has appointed a military-civilian tribunal to investigate government corruption.

Some officials and foreign diplomats said the investigation might further hamper the efforts of Prime Minister Endalkachew Mekonnen to complete his month-old government and quell the string of mutinies and civil disorders convulsing the African kingdom.

A government broadcast announced the appointment of two army officers and five civilians to the tribunal. It was charged with "bringing to court those officials found lacking in integrity."

There was no immediate reaction from dissident military enlisted men who had demanded an all-military tribunal, presumably including non-commissioned ranks as well as officers.

The broadcast said "past and present governments" would be investigated. Endalkachew and many of the members of his cabinet are holdovers, and the possibility of prosecution has already discouraged one man from taking a cabinet appointment. There are also persistent reports that a number of ministers want to resign.

Meanwhile, unrest continued to spread, fueled by dissatisfaction with the small feudal upper class that runs the country and its failure to cope with the effects of severe drought and inflation.

University students in Addis Ababa resumed a strike after only three days back in classes. The airports at Addis Ababa and Asmara, the country's two chief cities, were closed to all foreign planes by a strike of ground personnel.

Sources in Asmara, northern Ethiopia's chief city, said army troops there arrested an air force captain and four airmen on charges of "plotting against the empire." Tension between the army and air force also was reported escalating at the Debre Zeit air base near Addis Ababa; paratroopers loyal to the government were reported to have surrounded dissident airmen holding several officers prisoner on the base.

Gisela made German verboten for her

DEAR ABBY: Paul and I decided not to get married until after he had his army duty behind him, so he enlisted and ended up in Germany for a year. When he came back he told me that while he was in Germany he had fallen in love with a girl named Gisela, but the minute he saw me again he realized that I was the one he loved, so we took up where we left off and made plans to marry.

Later I found out that up until a month before Paul and I got married, he was still hearing from Gisela. He called her long distance a few times and even sent her money and tried to arrange for her to come over here.

After we were married he broke off all contact with Gisela, so everything turned out fine, but it left me with a problem. Now every time I hear the name Gisela I go into a violent rage. Also I hate everything German. I won't let my husband watch anything German on TV and I won't even have a German chocolate cake in the house! If I hear the word "German" on the TV, I turn off the program.

I'm afraid if I don't get over this hating everything German I'll drive my husband crazy, and ruin my marriage. Any advice?

HURT IN CHICAGO

DEAR HURT: You're lucky you don't live in Germantown, Pa. You'd have to move. Your jealousy is understandable, but it's become obsessive. Further, your prejudice against an entire nation is unfair and childish so put aside your anti-German attitude. If you don't, your marriage will be kaput.

DEAR ABBY: I am almost ashamed to write this, but you are my last hope.

I am a 44-year-old man who has to take a plane occasionally, and my problem is my terrible fear of flying. I have to take about three real stiff drinks before I can get on a plane.

I don't like to arrive at my destination half-plastered, but I usually do. I am not ordinarily a drinking man, but it's the only way I can face a flight.

Do the airlines have any program or course for people like me? If they don't they should have because I can't be the only person with this problem.

NO BIRD

DEAR NO: I inquired of several major airlines, and there's no such program in existence. But if you will tell the stewards about your problem when you board, she'll give you special attention. It's a worth while try. She's trained to provide the passengers with more than coffee, tea or milk.

DEAR ABBY: Is it true that you had a Jewish father?

NOSEY

DEAR NOSEY: Yup. And a Jewish Mother, too!

Improvements finished at Country Club

A number of improvements have been completed at the Washington Country Club in preparation for the 1974 summer season.

Club pro Tony Capuana said a new fence has been constructed around the nine-hole course and the interior of the clubhouse has been refurbished with a paint job. A new rug has been installed in the ladies' locker room.

Capuana said the greens have been mowed and presently are being fertilized. Plans have also been launched for draining some standing water from various locations on the course.

The spring and summer events will actually be launched with the annual Easter Sunday family dinner which will be held April 14.

The women's golfing events will open the first Wednesday in May and continue through September. The men's golfing leagues will start play the first Wednesday and Friday in May.

The Country Club's annual membership meeting will be held at the clubhouse at 7:30 p.m. Monday. Three new trustees to serve three-year terms will be elected in addition to presentation of reports from various committee chairmen.

Trustees whose terms expire are John Aills, Donald F. Crabtree and Roger F. Miller, the club's president. Six candidates have been presented by the nominating committee. They are Ralph Douglass, Horace L. Jacobs, Charles W. Mustine, Loren Noble, Warren J. Pollock and James R. Wilson.

Donald Long is currently the club's vice president and other board members besides Aills and Crabtree are Burnham J. Light, Mrs. Harry Thraillkill, Paul Thornhill, George Walker and William Mount.

Capuana said the deadline for paying the annual club dues is Monday.

Film boosts sale of exorcism medals

By CLINT SWIFT
Associated Press Writer
CANFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The revival of interest in exorcism has been a blessing for the Catholic Art Guild. The Guild, a 10-member lay firm manufacturing medallions in this Youngstown suburb, says it has been flooded recently with inquiries about its "anti-Satan" medal.

The St. Benedict medal was offered in February 1972 as part of a collection called "The 12 Greatest Medals of Christendom."

There were few requests for copies from the company's reserve of broken sets, recalls executive director Theodore A. Parent.

"But about last December, when 'The Exorcist' movie began to make headlines, we started noticing the calls and letters," he says. "For a stock item we considered a liability tying up capital, we've since collected nearly a hundred orders."

The St. Benedict medal is one of only two officially recognized by the Catholic Church and installed in Roman ritual, Parent claims. One

Catholic publication reports the medal was approved by Pope Benedict XIV in 1741.

It is considered the church's exorcism medal because Benedict often employed the sign of the cross in performing miracles and overcoming temptations of the devil.

THE GUILD'S medal shows Benedict holding the cross in one hand and the Holy Rule in the other. On the reverse side is a cross surrounded by a series of letters.

Parents says the meaning of the letters was lost for centuries until an old manuscript unearthed in a German monastery in the 17th century revealed the letters stood for a prayer.

Translated from Latin, the prayer said:

"Begone Satan. Suggest not to me thy vain things. The cup thou profferest me is evil. Drink thou thy poison."

THE CHURCH'S ritual provides a special exorcism for St. Benedict medals before blessing, Parent says.

IN DEMAND — This "anti-Satan" medal, produced by the Catholic Art Guild in Canfield, Ohio, has become a sought-after item since the release of the film, "The Exorcist."

The front shows St. Benedict holding the cross in one hand and the Holy Rule in the other. On the reverse side is a cross surrounded by letters.

The medal may be worn about the neck, dipped in medicine to heal the sick or attached to home or car to call down God's blessing.

The medal on which the Guild's piece is based was struck in 1880 to mark the 400th anniversary of St. Benedict's birth in 480 A.D., Parent says.

Feeling a special debt, the Guild is considering a special issue six years from now to commemorate the saint's 1500th birthday, he says.

'Poster Child' selected for Speech-Hearing Month

CHILLICOTHE — Jenny Barlage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barlage, of Chillicothe, has been chosen as the National Poster Child for Speech and Hearing Month in May.

Jenny is a 3½-year-old child who has a hearing impairment. Her mother brought her to the South Central Ohio Speech and Hearing Center in May of 1973 because she was not developing language. At the time, her older sister was enrolled in therapy for a speech problem.

In addition to lack of language, Mrs. Barlage reported that Jenny used mostly gestures to express her needs. She seemed to be a very frustrated, distractible child.

When her parents took her out in public, she just wouldn't sit still. She wanted to see everything. Jenny did not respond to conversation or sounds behind her back.

WHEN JENNY was brought to the South Central Center, she had to be taught to respond to sound. Gradually, she was conditioned, until finally an accurate hearing test could be performed. During this time language and speech reading activities were initiated. Jenny was fitted with a body type hearing aid, and rapidly began to pick up words.

Mr. and Mrs. Barlage were counseled about Jenny's problem and how to deal with it at home. They incorporated language building activities into their daily routine. Jenny has two older sisters, Debbie, 10, Cheryl, 7, and a brother, Henry, age 11.

The family will be flown to Washington D.C. in May to participate in activities for Speech and Hearing Month at the White House. Funds for this trip will be raised locally.

Sohio rips Metzenbaum

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The president of The Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) charged that statements made by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum about the company's financial standings are reckless and false.

"His latest blast falsely charges self dealing by Sohio and BP Oil, but acknowledges that he doesn't have all the facts," Sohio's president Alton W. Whitehouse said in a news release Friday. BP is a major stockholder of Sohio.

"The facts of the matter are plain," said Whitehouse. "Sohio is a crude-short company and its crude oil supply in recent months has been tight. It has been buying oil where it could around the world at going market prices."

Sohio said it purchased oil from BP in January for $11.66 per barrel and that oil from other sources, excluding Canada, cost Sohio $15.18 per barrel.

Metzenbaum said that Sohio's reported $57 million increase in profits was actually $200 million and that the company concealed that fact by a special accounting technique.

What is the evil secret?

On a rainy, gloomy day the deserted Wilbert mansion has two callers: interior decorator Holly Glowstep and wealthy Durwood Cooke.

Cooke has hired Holly to restore the mansion to its turn-of-the-century elegance so that elderly Abigail Wilbert will be happy there in her last days.

When she has completed the job, Holly invites gentleman criminologist Rip Kirby to inspect it. But Holly's recreation of the past turns into a nightmare of the present when strange, evil things occur in the eerie mansion — things that threaten the lives of innocent people.

Remembering the mysterious family squabble that caused the Wilberts to fade from the old New York's social picture, Rip delves into the past to solve a weird mystery of the present.

Don't miss the suspenseful new story in "Rip Kirby," starting Monday, April 8, in The Record-Herald.

Hats to parade in

crown. Summer soft green is the tone used by the straw snap brim fedora, center. Sleek sophistication abounds in a jaunty white straw, bottom left, accented with white violets, set perkily at the front. A new mood in summer headwear is the ultra light and soft felt, bottom right, a hat fashioned for daytime. It is a pull down cloche of pale brown, with a darker feather accented at the crown. Add peanut butter to bread

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Although we've baked dozens of loaves of banana quick bread in our test kitchen, we never thought of adding peanut butter to the batter until a friend who lives in the Canal Zone and a reader from Jackson, Miss., sent us their recipes for such a bread. Then we came upon the combination in "Cook-in — A Beginner's Guide to the Fun of Cooking" by Kathleen Dunning Fisher (David White). On testing all three recipes our tasters agreed that Kathleen's was by far the best because it made the tenderest and most delicate loaf. Here is our adaptation of her nutritious bread.

BANANA BREAD

2 cups unsifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar

2 large eggs
2 to 3 ripe bananas
1/2 cup crunchy peanut butter
Grease a 9 by 5 by 3 inch loaf pan. Thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Cream butter and sugar. Beat eggs until thickened and lemon color; add to butter-sugar mixture and blend. With a fork, finely mashed enough banana to make 1 cup; add peanut butter and blend. Into butter-sugar-egg mixture stir the flour mixture, in about 4 additions, alternately with banana mixture until just smooth each time. Turn into prepared pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 50 to 70 minutes. Let stand on a wire rack for 10 minutes; loosen edges and turn out on rack; turn right side up. Cool completely. Bread slices well fresh from the oven or cold.

Tech college pros, cons get airing

MACON — Action of Ohio's education leaders is being challenged by people who believe they were betrayed in a proposal for establishing a five-county general and technical college district.

Dr. James A. Norton, chancellor of the Ohio Board of Regents, along with board member Mary Ellen Ludium and a panel of educational leaders, held a public forum Thursday night at the Tri-County Academic Center in Brown County regarding the proposed technical of which the Tri-County center would be a part.

But most of the 300 people attending the session, led by State Rep. Harry C. Malott, opposed making Tri-County a part of the new district. About half of the audience were Tri-County students who, with some of their professors, said they wanted to continue as a branch of the University of Cincinnati.

For more than two hours, Dr. Norton withstood a barrage of questions and attacks, but patiently maintained that the action of the Board of Regents was designed to provide for the Tri-county students, along with the entire five-county area, educational advantages not now available.

Malott criticized the regents and said he would continue his opposition to their plans. Others said the regents were ignoring the will of the people.

WHEN Sen. William Mussey appealed to Dr. Norton to ask the Board of Regents to reconsider their plans for creating the new district composed of Adams, Brown, Clinton, Fayette and Highland counties, the chancellor said he could not do so in good conscience.

Mussey had suggested leaving Tri-County with the University of Cincinnati and creating a special technical college district with the former Air Force base site at Wilmington as the campus. The proposed five-county district initially is to be made up of the Tri-County center and the former Clinton County Air Force Base facilities, part of which already are being used by the Great Oaks Joint Vocational School District.

Dr. Norton said it would be unfair to ask his staff to come up with such a program. Dividing the five-county area into smaller districts would limit opportunities for younger people, he said, adding that "we must face up to the larger sense of a community."

He also noted that while UC has paid tremendous attention to the Tri-County center, it can't be expected to devote as much attention to Tri-County as a separate board for the five-county area made up of people from the area would give to educational developments there.

BOTH Dr. Norton and Mrs. Ludium emphasized that the five-county plan calls for the new district being governed by a board from the area. Plans call for two board members from each of the four largest counties, one from the smallest, probably Adams.

Mrs. Ludium declared that the Board of Regents' only purpose is to provide the best possible educational opportunities for all the people. "We must be concerned about the people in all five of the counties," she added.

Tri-County students appeared most concerned about the acceptance of their diplomas if the academic center ceases to be a branch of UC and becomes part of a technical college. They were assured that diplomas from two-year technical colleges around the state are "readily accepted," and that 98 per cent of technical school graduates get jobs.

We're talking about a multiple-campus, not a central campus," Dr. Norton said. Both technical programs and general education can be offered in a variety of communities," he said.

DR. NORTON said the Board of Regents "anticipate UC will cooperate" with the establishment of the new district. The UC board of trustees will vote Tuesday to divorce themselves from affiliation with the Tri-County center.

Dr. Robert O'Neil, UC executive vice president for academic affairs, told the group he has "every confidence the Board of Regents will expand higher education in the five-county area.

The Board of Regents already has purchased a site for a new Tri-County college near Eastern High School where Tri-County classes are now held at night and has made available $1.4 million for construction of the new facilities. Dr. Norton said plans for the new college are proceeding, and that it is expected contracts will be awarded and ground broken by early 1975.

Teachers vote approval of Forest Hills pact

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Teachers in the suburban Forest Hills School District Friday voted to accept a wage offer from the school board, averting a strike called for April 8.

Boyle testimony to start Monday

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — The way has been cleared for opening statements on Monday in the trial of W.A. "Tony" Boyle, charged with ordering the killing of a United Mine Workers Union rival.

Selection of a jury of nine men and three women and two alternates was completed Friday, but Judge Francis Catania of the Delaware County Common Pleas Court dismissed them for the weekend without a formal swearing-in ceremony.

"They will be sworn in Monday," said special prosecutor Richard Sprague.

The 72-year-old former UMW president is accused of ordering the 1969 slayings of Joseph "Jock" Yablonski, his wife Margaret and their 25-year-old daughter Charlotte. They were slain at their western Pennsyl-

House blast, fire loss set at $100,000

SYLVANIA, Ohio (AP)—Firemen estimated damage at $100,000 to the home of Ervin Zahn in a blaze believed to have started when paint cans exploded in his basement.

The explosions Friday lifted the living room floor about eight inches, officials said, and caused gas from a furnace fuel line to begin burning.

Report cash stolen from deputy registrar

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Rosemary Welage, 44, a deputy registrar for the Ohio Bureau of Motor Vehicles, reported the theft of $1,837 in money paid for new auto license tags.

Mrs. Welage sells the tags in a Mount Washington section clothing store. The money was kept in an unlocked drawer, she said.

vania home Dec. 31, 1969, three weeks after Yablonski lost a heated union election to Boyle.

The government alleges the shootings were carried out by hired gunmen financed by $20,000 in union funds authorized by Boyle.

The Boyle victory was set aside in 1972 by a federal judge and later that year a Yablonski supporter, Arnold Miller, ousted Boyle as UMW president.

Present for the first time in court Friday was Joseph "Chip" Yablonski, son of the man Boyle is charged with having killed.

Yablonski sat on the first-row bench

behind the prosecution table and stared frequently at the defendant. Boyle appeared to ignore him.

Yablonski, now general counsel for the UMW, told newsmen during a recess, "It's nearly over."

Boyle remained in the courthouse nearly four hours after the session recessed early Friday afternoon. He was given a brief physical examination before being returned to Riddle Memorial Hospital, where he is staying during the trial.

Opposing lawyers, with Boyle present, spent an hour in Judge Catania's chambers after the five-day jury selection was completed.

Boyle was brought here for the trial from a federal penitentiary hospital in Springfield, Mo., where he has been serving a three-year term for illegal use of union funds.

Ashland resident convicted in death

Mets swamp Bucks 11-5

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Dock Ellis says the Pittsburgh Pirates have enough pitching to win a baseball pennant this year.

If they do, they'll have to do better than Friday—when they gave up 17 hits while losing an 11-5 exhibition to the New York Mets.

"Everybody says we don't have enough pitching, but we do," said Ellis despite the Met bombardment at Bradenton, Fla. "You can't tell about pitching from these exhibition games."

Ellis believes in himself, among others, on the Pirate staff.

"We got the lefthanders—Jim Rooker, Jerry Reuss and Ken Brett to handle the West Coast teams this year," said Ellis. "San Francisco, Los Angeles and Cincinnati killed us last year."

In Friday's other exhibition games, the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Cincinnati Reds 5-4; the Montreal Expos trimmed the Detroit Tigers 7-5; the Kansas City Royals nipped the Chicago White Sox 5-4; the Cleveland Indians stopped the Chicago Cubs 4-0; the Cincinnati "B" team beat the Philadelphia Phillies' "B" squad 3-1; the San Francisco Giants nipped the San Diego Padres 3-2 in 11 innings; the Milwaukee Brewers trimmed the Oakland A's 9-4; the Baltimore Orioles crushed the New York Yankees 7-1; the Texas Rangers trimmed the Houston Astros 3-0; the Boston Red Sox whipped the Minnesota Twins 11-7 and the California Angels beat the Los Angeles

Dodgers 7-5.

The Mets' 17 hits included four by Ken Boswell and three by Lute Barnes. George Theodore, a reserve outfielder last season, drove in four runs with a home run, single and infield out for the Mets.

Jose Cruz doubled home two tying runs in the eighth inning and scored on Ken Reitz' single to trigger the Cardinals past the Reds.

Ron Fairly's two-run homer and Barry Foote's two-run triple helped Montreal over Detroit. Jim Wohlford's pinchdouble off Terry Forster in the ninth gave the Royals its victory over the White Sox.

The Indians jumped on Milt Pappas for three runs in the second and third innings and went on to beat the Cubs. Jim Lonborg hurled seven scoreless innings, leading the Phillies over the Reds in a "split-squad" game.

Mike Phillips singled home the tie-breaking run and pitcher Gary Lavelle drew a bases-loaded walk for the eventual winner in the 11th inning, leading San Francisco past San Diego. George Scott's grand slam homer in the seventh inning broke a 4-4 tie and lifted Milwaukee over Oakland.

Baltimore erupted for five runs in the fifth inning and Dave McNally allowed just six hits to help the Orioles beat the Yankees.

Three Texas pitchers held Houston to five hits and Jim Fregosi hit a solo homer off loser Larry Dierker to give the Rangers a decision over the Astros.

East-West cage All-Stars clash

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Gene Tormohlen, assistant Atlanta Hawks coach, surveyed the talent practicing for today's Coaches' East-West National College All-Star basketball game.

And Tormohlen liked what he saw as the 10-man squad whisked through light workouts at the University of Dayton Arena.

"There's six, maybe seven first-round draft choices playing here," said Tormohlen, a six-year veteran of National Basketball Association play with the Hawks.

"We've already got our mind made up on most of the college players, but there's some we're not sure of," Tormohlen said.

"Like Bruce King of PanAmerican. "King averaged 31 points during the season. However, we want to see what he will do against tough competition," the Hawks assistant said.

Tormohlen also believes Tom Henderson of Hawaii, like King playing for the West All-Stars, is a sure-fire first-round pick.

"He plays with a lot of savvy. He's a leader type and he reflects good coaching," Tormohlen said of the 6-foot-3 guard who played on the 1972 Olympic squad.

Tormohlen also likes Henderson's teammate on the Olympic team, North Carolina's 6-9 Bob Jones, who was playing for the East All-Stars.

"Jones is a real fine defensive player, passes real well and has great timing on the boards," the NBA coach said. "His outside shooting is suspect, though."

Tormohlen also considers 6-9 Marvin Barnes of Providence, 6-6 Bill Knight of Pittsburgh and 6-9 Len Elmore of Maryland, also on the East squad, as certain first-round draft picks.

"Barnes will go real early. He's lively, and he runs and jumps extremely well," Tormohlen said.

"Elmore's a great rebounder too," the Atlanta coach continued. "And Knight should make a good scoring NBA forward."

Tormohlen considers 6-7 Larry Robinson of Texas, who averaged more than 22 points, as a possible first-round selection.

"He's a good shooter and somebody

Nine games today

Jaycees tourney to end Sunday

Saturday and Sunday will end the competition in the fifth annual Jaycees basketball tournament. Today a total of nine games will be played. The first game started at 10 a.m. and different games will start one and a half hour later until the final game starts at 10 p.m.

In Friday nights action tournament favorite Dayne Puckett All-Stars defeated Circleville Oil 85-70. Denny Thompson and Bill Brown led the All-Stars with 26 points apiece followed by Rusch and Ball with 15 and 10 points respectively.

Circleville Oil was led by Phil Argento with 23 points following by Beatty and Mallison with 13 and 12.

In the second game Gary Thomas All-Stars were eliminated from the competition via a 80-57 loss to Credit's Construction.

Dan Beam and Jack Credit led the winners with 25 and 22 points. The All-Stars were paced by Keith Evans with 18 followed by Cooper with 16 and Wilson with 10.

The final game of the night had Harris Auction defeating Cummings Pharmacy 72-63. Earl Crosswhite paced the winners with 27 points with Larry Sticker following suit with 18. Gary Card and Mike McFarland collected 10 points also for the winners.

Pursley hit for 16 points for the losers with Prater backing him up with 15 cantos.

Following Saturday's game will be the semi-final round and the final round of the tournament Sunday.

The semi-finals will start at 1:00 p.m. Sunday with the finals being played at 7 p.m. If more than one game is needed to decide a winner the second game will be played at 8:30.

Bucks top Lakers in playoff

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's old hat to get stung by the likes of Earl Monroe, Julius Erving, Elvin Hayes and Gail Goodrich.

But pro basketball's "new season" introduced a new hero—Milwaukee Buck reserve forward Ron Williams.

Williams scored six of his 10 points in the last five minutes Friday night, rallying the Bucks for a 99-95 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers in the first game of their National Basketball Association Western Conference playoff semifinal series.

Williams, starting in place of the injured Lucius Allen, came back after being benched after he was unable to blanket Gail Goodrich who ended with 31 points.

"I felt like I wasn't contributing, but I finally got going in the second half," said Williams. "I guess I was tight in the beginning, but when I sat down I started relaxing by analyzing the game. Then I told myself I had to go back in and contribute."

The New York Knicks beat the Capital Bullets in the opening game of their best-of-7 NBA Eastern Conference semifinal series.

In the first game of the American Basketball Association playoffs, the New York Nets beat the Virginia Squires 108-96, while the San Diego Conquistadores earned fourth place in the ABA West with a 131-111 victory over the Denver Rockets.

Buffalo played Boston in an NBA Eastern Conference game today while Detroit was at Chicago in a nationally televised contest.

The Conquistadores will play the Utah Stars tonight, while San Antonio will be at Indiana in the other ABA playoff game.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led the Bucks in scoring with 35 and Bob Dandridge added 22, 14 in the second half.

Billingham set to open season

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Jack Billingham will take the mound for the Cincinnati Reds April 4 in the season opener with the Atlanta Braves.

The Braves have selected Carl Morton. His 1973 season record was 15-10 and Billingham was 19-10.

The Reds announced the rest of their probable pitchers after losing a 5-4 exhibition game to the St. Louis Cardinals at St. Petersburg, Fla.

On April 6 it will be left-hander Don Gullett for Cincinnati against Roric Harrison followed on April 7 by either Clay Kirby or Fred Norman for the Reds. Joe Niekro, the knuckleballer, has been selected by Atlanta.

Roger Nelson, who missed most of last season with a bad shoulder, has been impressive this spring, according to pitching coach Larry Shepard. Gary Nolan, who also was out last year, is headed for Indianapolis still complaining of arm pain.

Red Manager George "Sparky" Anderson used utility man Andy Kosko at third base Friday as an experiment, instead of Dan Driessen.

"If Driessen continues to show me he's having trouble hitting lefthand pitching, we'll play Andy at third occasionally," Anderson said.

Nine Ohioans are selected

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A panel of sports writers has selected nine Ohio players, including two each from Dayton and Cincinnati, to play in the 5th annual Ohio-Indiana all-star college basketball series next month.

The duos named Friday were Donald Smith and Mike Sylvester, who led Dayton to the NCAA tournament, and Lloyd Batts and Jesse Jemison, who paced Cincinnati to a berth in the National Invitation Tournament.

Other Ohio all-stars picked were Ed Lawrence of Mount Union, Gene Ford of Muskingum, Phil Lumpkin of Miami, Bill Brown of Ohio University and Bruce Baer of Defiance.

Quilici sees good year for twins

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Manager Frank Quilici thinks the youth program of the Minnesota Twins is ready to begin paying dividends in the West Division of the American League.

The Twins are coming off a third-place finish in 1973, with uncertainties regarding Harmon Killebrew and Tony Oliva, but with confidence of more experience.

"We had a very young team last season," said Quilici. "Our players had to learn to play together while they were finding out if they belonged in the major leagues."

"You could see the change in our club last season. It wasn't the team in September that it was in April... it was a lot better."

Among the youngsters Quilici is counting on are Eric Soderholm, centerfielder Steve Brye, catcher Glenn Borgmann and a group of young pitchers, including Joe Decker, 10-10, and Bill Campbell, 3-3.

However, to become a contender again, the Twins need the power of Killebrew and Oliva. Killebrew, recovering from knee surgery, dislocated a shoulder in spring training and his comeback is in jeopardy.

Oliva missed most of the 1972 season with knee miseries, but came back in 1973 with a .291 average as the team's designated hitter. His gimpy knees restrict his movement on the bases when he does get on.

Minnesota's strength is its hitting. Rod Carew won his third American League batting championship last year with a .350 average. With others such as Jim Holt's .297, Oliva's .291 and Steve Braun's .283, the Twins led the majors in hitting.

Quilici would like his hitters this year to cut down on their strikeouts and provide more clutch hits. Outfielder Bob Darwin has struck out almost 300 times in his two years with the club.

The Twins should be steadier on defense this year with Brye in center, Soderholm at third and Randy Hundley, acquired from the Chicago Cubs during the offseason for George Mitterwald, as catcher.

Danny Thompson will be trying to come back from assorted injuries at shortstop. If not, the Twins are looking closely at rookie Sergio Ferrer. Jerry Terrell, a .265 hitter as a rookie, is a capable utility man.

Holt, rookie Craig Kusick or Killebrew will share the duties at first base. Braun, being tried at left field, joins Holt, Brye, Darwin and Hisle vying for places in the outfield.

More questions confront Quilici on his pitching staff. He has no proven lefthanded starters and 23-year-old Bert Blyleven was the only standout with a 20-17 log. Ray Corbin, Decker, Campbell and young southpaw Vic Albury show promise and veteran Bill Hands, 7-10, looks like he could regain form which made him a 20-game winner with the Cubs.

The bullpen is yet another problem. The Twins haven't had adequate firemen since Ron Perranoski and Stan Williams combined to save them West Division titles in 1969 and 1970.

Tom Burgmeier was obtained from the Kansas City farm system and appears to be the leading candidate for critical bullpen duty.

Still, Quilici remains the optimist. "We've got the nucleus of a fine ball club," he says.

Post Time: 8:15 P.M.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Manager Bobby Winkles, the former college coach starting his second season as manager of the California Angels, terms his club definitely improved, particularly defensively.

"Offensively, we'll just have to wait until I can determine which nine guys we are going to play and get them in every day so the hitting catches up with the pitching," Winkles explains.

Much of the defensive improvement comes with the addition of catcher Ellie Rodriguez from the Milwaukee Brewers.

"We had trouble with our throwing last year and we didn't throw many guys out," says Winkles. "I think that out of 144 attempted steals against us, 104 of them stole successfully and that's a terrible statistic."

The Rodriguez deal was the latest big one by rebuilding General Manager Harry Dalton. In addition to the catcher, the Angels got outfielders Ollie Brown and Joe Lahoud and pitchers Skip Lockwood and Gary Ryerson.

That deal could have a side effect — improving the confidence of center fielder Mickey Rivers. He came up to the Angels from Salt Lake City on Sept. 4 and batted .349.

Bobby Cole takes over golf lead

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "For the last three or four years, I was a very conservative player," says South African golfer Bobby Cole. "This year I've decided to attack, have a go at everything."

And his aggressive play left him with a half-dozen short birdies putts that the skinny little guy converted into a 66 and first place Friday after the second round of the $150,000 Greater New Orleans Open Golf Tournament.

Cole, the South African Open champion, but a non-winner in six years on the American tour, put together two rounds of 134, 10 under par on the windswept, 7,008-yard Lakewood Country Club course. He was one stroke in front of Larry Hinson and Lee Trevino.

Jack Nicklaus, who shared the first-round lead with veteran Miller Barber, bogeyed two of his last three holes for a 71. He was three strokes back at 137.

"Every bogey I made," said Nicklaus, who had four of them, "was the result of a solid, well-hit shot. Ah, well, such is life."

Trevino, though still complaining of putting troubles, and the slump-ridden Hinson each had 68s in the gusty, tricky winds and were tied for second just one shot out of the lead at 135.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 NT Dble Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead - two of clubs.

It is generally recognized that perfect defense is more difficult than perfect dummy play.

Consider this deal where South opened a weak notrump (12 to 14 points). West doubled, North passed, and East also passed, confident of beating the contract with his 9 points.

West led a club, East's king forcing the ace, and South played a heart to the king, followed by a heart to the jack. West took the ace and made the best return of a heart to East's queen.

East studied the situation carefully and decided against a club return. He reasoned that declarer, known to have started with three hearts and four clubs, probably had four spades and two diamonds rather than three of each suit.

He drew this conclusion from West's deuce of clubs lead, which showed a four-card suit. Since West would have been more likely to lead from a four-card major than a four-card minor, the implication was strong that he did not have four spades.

Accordingly East returned a low diamond and the defense cashed four diamonds, leading to this position:

North
♥ J 9 4

West
♥ Q 10
♦ Q 10 8

East

South
♥ A 8
♦ J 9 3

East now returned a club, won by West with the eight, and West contributed his share to the super-defense when he led the queen of spades. As a result, South could score only the ace of spades and he went limping off the field of battle to the tune of minus 700.

New Treatment for Stuttering

A new method for the treatment of stuttering is now being added to the many excellent ones now in use.

Dr. Martin F. Schwartz, of the Temple University Speech Research Laboratory in Philadelphia, says, "We realize that stuttering is a classical psychosomatic illness in which the stutterer has a physical predisposition to stutter."

"But now it seems more likely that the real heart of the problem lies in the voice box." According to Dr. Schwartz, a series of breathing exercises gives the stutterer a "softer" voice and changes the basic position of the voice box (larynx) during speech.

The excellent rate of success has stimulated Dr. Schwartz and other researchers to study the advantages of these deep abdominal breathing exercises. Both stutterers themselves and specialists in stuttering have long been aware that when such victims either sing or turn ordinary prose into a song, the stuttering or stammering ceases.

An ectopic pregnancy is one that occurs in the Fallopian tubes rather than in the womb (uterus). When this occurs, potential hazards exist unless the condition is recognized early, before complications occur.

At the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston, a new test is being used to discover an ectopic pregnancy within a few days after it occurs.

Dr. Melvin Taylor and Dr. Thomas Kosasa have used a highly sensitive test known as the "radio-immuno-assay" (RIA) in this study.

It is hoped that this method will be substantiated soon and will be used almost as a routine to discover this rare complication of pregnancy.

A new study performed on 641 children at a Navajo boarding school has brought to light that Vitamin C seems to reduce the duration and severity of respiratory infections.

This study, reported in the New England Journal of Medicine, substantiates the original concept expounded by Dr. Linus Pauling in his book, "Vitamin C and the Common Cold."

Certainly, this and other studies emphasize the need for further and more intensive investigation for giving credence to the possibility that Vitamin C plays an important role in the prevention, and perhaps in the treatment, of the common cold.

U. S. plans withdrawal

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The United States will begin withdrawing about 8,000 troops from Thailand in mid-May and will send home a number of warplanes, including B52 bombers, Thai and U.S. officials announced today.

The reduction of U.S. forces in Thailand by nearly a fourth will leave about 27,000 American troops in the country, the smallest number since 1966, U.S. spokesmen said.

No deadline was set for completion of the withdrawal.

A number of politically influential Thais have been demanding that the U.S. presence be cut drastically or eliminated to keep from endangering the improvement taking place in Thailand's relations with China. Some members of the U.S. Congress also have urged recently that the American force be reduced.

The U.S. force in Thailand includes about 35,000 servicemen stationed at six air bases and a port facility, about 300 fighters and fighter-bombers and about 50 B52 heavy bombers.

Energy pinch job loses hit 500,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fuel shortages have cost nearly 500,000 Americans their jobs, Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan has told Congress.

However, unemployment will be reduced substantially once petroleum supplies return to normal, Brennan said Friday in a report.

Between 125,000 and 200,000 workers, most of them employed at service stations or by the airlines, lost their jobs during the five-month Arab oil embargo as a direct result of U.S. energy shortages, he said.

Another 300,000 workers were thrown out of work in industries affected indirectly by the energy crisis, as consumer demand declined for such products as automobiles, boats, aircraft and recreational vehicles and such services as hotels and amusements, he said.

The nation's unemployment rate was 4.6 per cent of the work force in October, but rose steadily to 5.2 per cent in January as the oil embargo took hold. It remained steady in February, surprising economists who had predicted a further increase.

Brennan said the impact of energy shortages should ease in the coming months and that any negative impact will be due mainly to higher fuel prices rather than scarcities.

The search for alternative energy sources and increased dependence on domestic fuels is expected to spur the creation of new jobs, the secretary added.

Officers checking stolen car report

A car was stolen from a Fayette County man, sometime between 6:30 p.m. and 9:45 p.m. Friday, while it was parked in the Bowland Lanes parking lot, CCC-Highway-W.

The car was owned by Ralph L. Bray, 69, Lakewood Hills, who died of an apparent heart attack in the Sheriff's Department while reporting the incident.

A windshield was broken on a car parked at the Dave Barnhart residence, 230 Belle Ave., sometime Tuesday night.

Sheriff's deputies reported the windshield had been struck with a blunt object.

The report was filed Saturday and the owner of the car was not listed.

No injuries reported in traffic accidents

A Jamestown man rolled his car and in so doing demolished it during the night and a Washington C.H. man rolled his truck over on its side, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reports.

City police had a total of seven accidents Friday, but no injuries.

A car driven by Robert W. Jones, 18, Jamestown, was wrecked when he failed to negotiate a sharp left curve at 2:10 a.m. Saturday, nine-tenths miles north of Washington C.H., on Ohio Rt. 41.

7 state candidates won't file reports

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Seven candidates for statewide office have declined to take part in a Common Cause project for voluntary filing of campaign disclosure statements, the citizens' lobby announced Friday.

Heading the list of those declining to participate is former Gov. James A. Rhodes, who is seeking the Republican gubernatorial nomination, according to Genay A. Hess of Columbus, the group's publicity coordinator.

Others are gubernatorial candidates Bert Dawson Jr., Republican, and James D. Nolan, Democrat; lieutenant governor aspirant Anthony O. Calabrese and William M. O'Neill, both Democrats; Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, Republican seeking re-election, and George C. Smith, candidate for the GOP nomination for attorney general.

Hess said 11 candidates have filed the statements and 12 others indicated they will do so before the April 27 deadline.

Common Cause said the following candidates filed:

Democrats for lieutenant governor — J. W. Brown, Richard F. Celeste, Don L. Hanni, and Lucille Huston.

Republican for attorney general — Stanley J. Aronoff.

Democrats for secretary of state — R. Kent Bell, Beverly Bingle, and Tony P. Hall.

Republican for auditor — Roger W. Tracy Jr.

Democrat for treasurer — Gertrude W. Donahay.

Gov. John J. Gilligan was among a dozen other candidates who told

The seven accidents reported by city police, which occurred Friday were: 3:37 p.m. — An accident at the intersection of Fayette Center and Columbus Avenue involved cars driven by Keith L. Freeman, 16, of 817 Rawlings St., and David J. Smith, 40, of 933 Columbus Ave.; moderate damage to both cars.

4:13 p.m. — A three-car collision between cars driven by Delbert E. Woods Jr., 23, Jeffersonville, Doris E. White, 37, Bloomingburg and Carole C. Lemaster, 23, of 208 E. Oakland Ave.

Woods was traveling east on Columbus Avenue, near Lewis Street, when he collided with the Lemaster vehicle, which in turn hit the White auto. The latter two vehicles had been stopped.

Woods was charged with not maintaining assured clear distance. The Lemaster vehicle was severely damaged; the White vehicle slightly damaged and the Woods vehicle, moderately damaged.

5:12 p.m. — An accident involving cars driven by James E. Whaley, 34, Rt. 5, and Herbert M. Clinker, 65, Rt. 5, occurred in front of 419 East St. Damage was slight.

6:08 p.m. — Ralph W. Newman, 51, South Vienna, was charged with a traffic light violation by police when he allegedly jumped a light and pulled into the path of a car driven by Larry L. Lewis, 20, of 1024 E. Paint St.

The incident occurred at the North and Paint Street intersection. Damage was moderate.

6:49 p.m. — A car owned by Sylvia E. Angeletti Sr., 219 W. Temple St., was struck by a hitskip driver while parked in the Hidy Foods parking lot, Columbus Ave.

7:42 p.m. — An accident at the intersection of Blackstone Street and Columbus Avenue involved cars driven by Michael L. Young, 19, of 727 Leesburg Ave., and Claude Haley, 41, of 730 John St. Damage was moderate.

11:10 p.m. — A minor accident in the Borden Burger parking lot, Columbus Ave., involved cars driven by George E. Massie, 17, West Lancaster Rd., and Terry Lynn Campbell, 20, of 720 Dayton Ave.

Common Cause they would file disclosure statements prior to the May primary.

Atty. Gen. William J. Brown reported the largest figures, saying they cover the period dating back to January 27, 1972. He listed contributions of $236,055 and expenditures of $77,871.65.

State Treasurer Gertrude W. Donahay reported no receipts and no expenditures but said she would file a report when she has organized her committee. She is without primary election opposition.

Celeste reported he has raised $36,441, with major contributions coming from the United Auto Workers union and his parents, while Hall listed receipts totaling $23,861. Celeste and Hall each reported $15,000 donations from the UAW.

Aronoff said he has received about $22,663 and spent most of it. Huston reported contributions of $8,335; J. W. Brown $150, and Roger Tracy Jr. $6,354.

Violent weather hammers nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Foul weather, with snow, gales, tornadoes, thunderstorms and hail, plagued much of the Midwest and eastern third of the nation today and also hit scattered sections of the West.

Snow and freezing rain glazed the Northeast from Pennsylvania and New Jersey into southern New England. New York City was a snarl of stalled traffic Friday evening as three inches of snow crippled the city during rush hour.

The Westchester Airport at White Plains, N.Y., was closed after eight inches of snow clogged the runways. Bridgeport, Conn., was covered with 5 inches of snow.

Travel advisories were posted for much of the region.

A few tornadoes, with hail, heavy rains and high winds, were sighted late Friday night and early today from northern Georgia to eastern Tennessee and Kentucky, but there were no reports of injuries. A tornado watch was in effect for parts of the region during the early morning hours.

Snow and freezing rain also blanketed the northern Midwest, with Wisconsin, Illinois and Iowa tasting winter-like weather despite spring's official arrival over a week ago. Four to six inches of snow whitened northern Minnesota.

Early morning blaze destroys automobile

A Bloomingburg man's car caught fire due to a faulty fuel line on the CCC-Highway, north of the city limits, at 1:18 a.m. Saturday.

The Washington C.H. Fire Department and the Fayette County Sheriff's Department were called to the scene. The car, owned by John Browning, was a complete loss.

KIRKPATRICK FUNERAL HOME

Dear friends,

What to tell the children when a death occurs in the family? The answer - tell them "the truth". A simple explanation of the fact that death occurs eventually to all living things is the most wholesome for the child. It is far better than pretending that grandma has merely "gone away for awhile".

Respectfully,

HONOR STUDENTS AT WORK — Some 24 members of the Miami Trace High School National Honor Society chapter manned their stations at the Frisch's Restaurant Saturday morning. The students replaced regular employees at all non-cooking positions from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Money taken in by the restaurant during those hours (less costs) will go into the NHS scholarship fund. Juniors Dave Louis, right, and Dean Stockwell look at the mountain of strawberries that must be cleaned before going into pie and shortcake. Last year the project netted $500.

Nixon won't pay taxes voluntarily

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional staffers have concluded that President Nixon owes substantially more than the $78,651 tax he paid during his first term, sources close to the inquiry say.

The sources also said Nixon has decided against paying additional tax voluntarily. Such a suggestion was made publicly by Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., vice chairman of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, which is looking into the President's taxes.

Instead, White House lawyers have asked to argue the President's case before the committee, a request expected to be granted, the sources said. The Nixon tax lawyers contend that legal authorities can legitimately differ and that they should be heard in opposition to any adverse conclusions, sources said.

The staff anticipates submitting its report on Nixon's taxes for the years 1969 through 1972 to the committee within a week. The President had income totaling more than $1 million during those years.

Whether the committee calls witnesses and holds public hearings on questions of fact has not been determined, the sources said.

The biggest single item in the controversy on Nixon's taxes is his deduction for a gift of papers valued at $576,000. A key question is whether the gift was made before a July 25, 1969 deadline for making such tax-deductible gifts.

A new appraisal of the papers has put a much lower value on them so that Nixon might owe some tax even if the donation is ruled valid, the sources said.

However, one source said that nothing he had seen convinced him that the donation qualifies under the law.

The staff report is understood to cover also such questions as whether Nixon should have paid capital gains tax on the profits from sale of his New York apartment and a portion of his San Clemente, Calif., property.

The report also is understood to cover his claimed deductions of part of the expenses of the San Clemente establishment on the basis of official use, and several other items involving smaller sums.

Find man guilty in children's deaths

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The Circuit Court jury that convicted Ernest John Dobbert Jr. in the death of his 9-year-old daughter and 7-year-old son next decides the penalty.

Dobbert faces electrocution or life in prison for the first degree murder conviction handed down Friday in the death of his daughter.

A jury of seven women and five men also convicted Dobbert of second degree murder in the death of his son and of torture and child abuse in the mistreatment of two surviving children.

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Ford will idle 14,200 workers at nine plants, including one at Lima, Ohio, for one or two weeks next month in a new round of production cutbacks, spokesmen said Friday.

Death ends wedding dream as youth breaks up fight

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Amos Brown and Debbie West were to have been married today, on Brown's 18th birthday. But death intervened.

Six days before he died, Brown and Miss West were walking home when a car stopped nearby. Miss West said they saw a woman leaving the car. A man followed, chasing her.

"I told Amos, 'We need to help that woman, she's in trouble,'" said Miss West, 18. "At first he said no, but then he gave in and we went across the street to them.

"Amos kept pleading with the man to leave the woman alone, then he jumped on top of the man and pulled him off of her.

"I helped the woman get up and she kept yelling that she had to get out of here. Then the man started to take off and Amos came up to me.

"He started to hug me. He said Debbie ... honey."

Then he collapsed in his fiancée's arms. He had been stabbed in the heart.

Two minutes later, police cars crowded the area. Officers rushed young Brown to County Hospital, one mile away.

For six days following surgery, Amos clung to life.

Highland man gets life in store slaying

HILLSBORO — Douglas Howland, 22, of Greenfield, was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Ohio State Penitentiary Friday in the slaying of a merchant at rural Bridges last Nov. 12.

Howland pleaded guilty to second degree murder before Judge Darrell Hottle in Highland County Common Pleas Court. He had been charged with murder during the perpetration of a robbery, a capital offense, but was permitted to plead guilty to the lesser offense on the recommendation of Prosecutor John O. Crouse.

A second suspect in the case, David Bennett, also 22 and of Greenfield, will go on trial April 8 in the shotgun slaying of Joseph C. Barrett, 72, at his country store in Bridges.

For six days, Debbie sat and slept near his side.

She was there at 7:45 a.m., March 8, when her boyfriend died.

Police earlier had charged Manuel C. Medina Jr. with assault with intent to commit murder. They said the charge has now been changed to first-degree murder.

"We had been going together for two years — almost since the time I met him," Debbie said. "We had been planning to get married on Saturday — when he turned 18."

Nixon fund trustees squabble

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two trustees of President Nixon's surplus campaign funds say they told the third trustee — Maurice H. Stans — they would resign if a policy on payment of legal fees for former campaign officials was not changed.

Trustees Charles E. Potter and Guilford Dudley Jr. said Stans, on trial in New York on federal conspiracy and perjury charges, did not object when they informed him of their intentions by telephone a week ago.

But Potter, in a telephone interview Friday, said it apparently came as a surprise to the former Commerce secretary who suggested "let's turn it over to the lawyers."

"I said, 'It's going to be done or else you're going to lose a couple of trustees,'" Potter said.

Dudley said, "I told Stans if it wasn't done I'd resign. He said, 'Well, it will never come to that.'"

Dudley, a Nashville, Tenn., insurance executive, and Potter, a Washington businessman and former U.S. senator from Michigan, became trustees with Stans of a $3.5 million Nixon campaign surplus last month when the Finance Committee to Re-elect the President closed its books.

Stans had headed the committee from its inception in early 1972.

Under a policy adopted in April 1973, before the flood of Watergate revelations began or any indictments were handed up, the finance committee decided to pay all legal expenses of any former official up until indictment.

The trust agreement, signed Feb. 11, expanded this to include reimbursement of expenses for anybody

Reaction to Guard indictments mixed

8 named in KSU slayings

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The father of one student killed at Kent State University in 1970 reacted with "a mixture of sorrow and relief" to Friday's indictment of eight national guardsmen accused in the deaths.

"There is no happiness in this matter," added Arthur Krause of Pittsburgh, Pa. His daughter, Allison, 19, was one of four students killed May 4, 1970, during a burst of gunfire that ended a campus confrontation between students and guardsmen.

But Ralph W. Zoller of Mantua, Ohio, whose son was indicted, said he found it ridiculous.

"This whole thing is stupid," he added.

Others killed when guardsmen broke up the protest against U.S. involvement in Cambodia were Jeffrey Miller, 20, Plainview, N.J.; Sandy Lee Scheuer, 20, Youngstown, Ohio, and William Schroeder, 19, Lorain, Ohio.

The federal grand jury, which began work last Dec. 18, accused one present and eight former Ohio national guardsmen of willfully depriving the four dead and nine wounded students of their Constitutional rights.

Those named in the three-count indictment were Sgt. Mathew J. McManus, 28, West Salem, Ohio, presently a member of the National Guard, and the following former guardsmen: Lawrence A. Shafer, 28, Ravenna, Ohio; James D. McGee, 27, Ravenna; William E. Perkins, 28, Canton, Ohio; James E. Pierce, 29, Amelia Island, Fla.; Ralph W. Zoller, 27, Mantua, Ohio; Barry W. Morris, 29, Kent, Ohio, and Leon H. Smith, Beach City, Ohio.

Sarah Scheuer of Youngstown, mother of one victim, said it was heartening "that there is some chance that the system works."

And Maj. John E. Martin of Wooster, commander of A Company, 145th Infantry, reminded that "these young men have civil rights, too." His unit was one of those from which the gunfire came.

"I'm wondering if anybody is looking after them," he added.

A Justice Department spokesman said the defendants would be summoned for arraignment, scheduled for April 10, but would not be arrested.

Conviction under the criminal charges could bring penalties ranging from a year's imprisonment and a $10,000 fine up to life in prison in those instances in which death resulted from the action.

The 590-word indictment capped 39 days of jury work that included three days of secret deliberations—uncommonly long for deciding recommendations in a civil rights case, a Justice Department spokesman said.

The 22 jurors, 19 of whom were present Friday in court, pored over what a federal judge said was about 6,500 pages of transcript, testimony of 173 witnesses, and 250 documents that included scores of photographs, a 100-page Ohio National Guard report and an 8,000-page FBI report of probes into the shootings.

The 13 seconds of ragged gunfire, that left the four dead and nine wounded, erupted shortly after noon on that spring day.

Guardsmen firing volleys of teargas and shouting demonstrators hurling rocks and other objects had maneuvered back and forth, the guardsmen once finding themselves fenced into a dead end.

Then some members of the Guard

units advancing up a hill toward the protest rally's crowd fired, and the 13 students fell.

All the defendants were members of those units at the time.

The indictment charged that Shafer, McGee, Perkins, Pierce and Zoller, "aiding and abetting each other," fired .30-caliber M1 rifles "at, over, into and in the direction of" 12 of the victims. The five were the only ones charged under two federal laws and the only ones against whom the aiding and abetting charge was leveled.

Morris was charged with firing a .45-caliber automatic pistol at or near demonstrators, and McManus and Smith were charged with firing 12-gauge shotguns.

Dana Stewart, Ohio adjutant general, said he was "sorry to see these charges brought" and added that they show

Food prices may decline this spring

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 4 per cent drop in raw farm product prices in late winter may mean some springtime bargains for food shoppers, but choices may be limited.

The decline, reported Friday by the Agriculture Department, covered all farm products and included many items which do not go directly into groceries such as corn, soybeans and hay.

But meat animals, one of the most important consumer categories, showed a price drop of 8 per cent from Feb. 15 to March 15. Some of those products, especially beef, already have shown up as lower priced specials at retail counters.

Even so, farm prices frequently are volatile. They gyrated wildly last summer, after the Nixon administration eased store price curbs, and then declined for three months before starting another round of increases that lasted most of the winter.

However, the report Friday included a hint that retail food price increases may be slowing. As of March 15, it said, food prices paid by farm families were up 1.5 per cent from a month earlier.

Although USDA economists say the report's food price figure is not as reliable as other government statistics gathered specially for that purpose, it did give some idea that consumers saw supermarket price gains slow a bit in March.

Here is why: a month ago, a similar farm price report said food prices went up 4.0 per cent from Jan. 15 to Feb. 15. When the Bureau of Labor Statistics issued its February prices for store-bought food, those were shown to have risen 3.0 per cent.

In addition to the downturn in meat animal prices, the farm report Friday also showed consumers might expect some other breaks.

Vesco witness admits to previous lies empowers the trustees to deny reimbursement to a former official who is acquitted of felony charges on a legal technicality where the circumstances point, in the trustees' opinion, to guilt. The new language also specifically bars Stans from taking part in any decision involving payment of his own legal fees. On trial with Stans on charges arising from a secret $200,000 campaign contribution is former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, who was political chief of the campaign.

cash contribution of $200,000 to Nixon's campaign, of concealing the contribution and of lying to the grand jury about it.

Cook is the son of a wealthy Nebraska banker whose friendship with Stans helped him get his SEC post. Cook testified that Stans spoke to him many times about the SEC probe of Vesco's financial empire before a massive fraud suit was filed against Vesco on Nov. 27, 1972. Vesco was indicted with Mitchell and Stans but has fled the country and is a fugitive.

Cook said Stans caused him to eliminate reference to Vesco's campaign contribution from the civil fraud complaint and also tried to stop the filing of transcripts of testimony which would have revealed the contribution.

In addition, he said that Stans had admitted to him that he had lied to the grand jury and had tacitly suggested that Cook do the same.

Under questioning by Asst. U.S. Atty.

only that the jurors "in their own minds found reason for further action."

McGee, one of those indicted, said he would have "plenty to say, and I will say it," but only after consulting an attorney.

Several other defendants declined comment before consulting lawyers.

The jury was the first such federal panel to probe the shootings. The shootings climaxed a series of demonstrations which began May 1, 1970, and included the burning of a campus military building.

Atty. Gen. Elliott Richardson requested the grand jury probe, reversing a 1971 decision by then-Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

A presidential commission which studied the Kent State and similar protests called the shootings inexcusable and unnecessary.

An Ohio grand jury, however, found the guardsmen blameless and indicted 25 others, mostly students. Of these indictments three led to guilty pleas or verdicts, one was dismissed, one found innocent, and the rest were dropped by the state for lack of evidence.

The federal jurors were not dismissed after they returned the indictments. A Justice Department spokesman said the jury would remain empaneled until the chief federal judge here is satisfied there is no more work for it.

Still pending as a result of the shootings are a series of civil suits filed by parents of three of the four students killed. The suits are against former Gov. James A. Rhodes, who ordered the troops to the campus; ex-Kent State President Robert White, now a teacher at the college, and five Guard officials. The suits seek about $12 million in damages.

Devastating floods hammer at Brazil; fear 1,000 dead

TUBARAO, Brazil (AP) — Soldiers patrolled for looting and doctors watched for possible typhoid outbreaks as this coastal city began counting its losses from devastating floods that have swept nine Brazilian states.

There were no official nationwide estimates of the death toll, but the mayor of Tubarao said as many as 1,000 were dead in his city alone. Civil defense officials gave the known toll as 42.

Newspapers estimated nationwide damage to crops and livestock at up to $400 million. Thousands were left homeless.

Tubarao, a city of 100,000 in southern Santa Catarina province, suffered more damage than any other area in the two weeks of torrential rains that loosened mud and swelled rivers from northwest Brazil to the southern coast. The city is 600 miles south of Rio de Janeiro.

The rains stopped Friday and authorities were confident the flooding was over in most of the country. But panic was reported in Boqueirao in the northeastern Brazilian state of Ceara, where a dam broke and sent water cascading into the center of town. Twenty thousand residents were left homeless.

In Tubarao, Mayor Irmoto Feuer-schuette, a physician, ordered mass inoculations against typhoid fever and said the disease could reach the end of its incubation period and break out this weekend.

The only drinking water in the city was from the muddy Tubarao River, and officials feared it had been contaminated by rotting carcasses of drowned cattle and sewage from broken pipes. Feuer-schuette estimated that some 15,000 cattle had been killed.

A special military command was set up to enforce a curfew from 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. "We had a lot of shooting during the night by the patrols," the mayor said, but he did not say whether any looters were hit.

Tubarao was said to be 70 per cent destroyed. There was no electricity, telephone service or piped water. Piles of muddy rubble showed where houses had stood, streets and railroad tracks were ripped up, power lines were down and mud covered everything.

The area's crops of rice, corn and potatoes were a total loss.

On a nearby hill, Mrs. Dario Antonio da Rocha, a pregnant 22-year-old housewife, scrubbed muddy garments.

"We lost everything, everything," she said, pointing to a flooded area where she and her husband had lived in a small rented house.

Judge Lee P. Gagliardi sustained a government objection and would not let Cook answer.

But when Wing, the government lawyer, got another crack at Cook, he asked: "Why did you lie?"

Gagliardi at first sustained a defense objection. But he changed his mind after the prosecution argued, with the jury out of the room, that "the government should be allowed to rehabilitate a witness whose credibility has been attacked."

Finally allowed to answer, Cook said he had lied for two basic reasons.

"Number one, as a result of my conversations with Mr. Stans and, number two, I did not want to bring any discredit or dishonor to the commission as to the fact that I had these conversations with Mr. Stans."

Deadline is scheduled by ASCS for conservation sign-up

The sign-up for area farmers to start conservation work under long-term agreements on federal cost sharing may be made on or before April 5, 1974. George Speakman, chairman of the Fayette County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service

(ASCS) reported.

Speakman said the long term agreement—3 to 10 years—is a provision of the new Rural Environmental Conservation Program (RECP) announced by the U.S. Department of Agriculture last December. He said the opportunities are very extensive under the long-term agreements because they guarantee funds for a number of years, and will deal with the widest variety of rural conservation practices for the public benefit on record.

However, the program requires that the farmer come in on or before April 5 to sign up, that he bring an approved conservation plan for his farm, and that he be able to assure starting his development this year.

The RECP conservation measures will take into account all aspects of soil and water conservation, effects on near-by areas, and the needs of the farmer by man, animals and wild life. Both the Soil Conservation Service and the Forest Service will provide technical services and planning assistance.

Speakman said approval of long-term agreements will be on a priority basis because funds will be limited for this year and must come from the regular allocated RECP funds this year for Fayette County. The cost sharing has been set at 50 per cent to 75 per cent on all costs incurred, including labor.

The sign-up from March 18 to April 5 does not apply to the one-year agreements or the forestry incentive practices of the RECP. However, Speakman said the ASCS office also encourages other farmers and landowners to sign up for these two programs as early as possible because of the late start this year.

The opportunities in the program are available without regard to race, color, creed, national origin or sex.

Report shows 16 per cent of income spent for food

Recently released USDA figures show that on the average Americans still spend less than 16 per cent of their after-tax incomes on food. Many budget conscious families don't believe this can be true, and for some families it is not, according to Lois Simonds, Extension economist at Ohio State University.

Actually, many families do spend a greater proportion than this for food as they strive to have nutritious and satisfying meals and snacks. The 16 per cent figure represents the proportion of the nation's overall disposable income that is spent for food. It is derived by dividing the total income after taxes into total food expenditures.

THE 16 per cent figure is an average and, like all averages, there are many deviations from it. There are very wealthy families who spend a considerably smaller proportion of their incomes for food, as well as many poor families who spend a much larger part of their incomes for food items.

Another reason the 16 per cent figure is less than some families would expect is because it also includes the income and expenditures of nonprofit institutions which spend little, if anything, for food. Also, non-money incomes such as net rental values of owner-occupied houses and the value of food and fuel produced and used on the farm are included. This increases the total disposable income of the nation, which acts to lower the proportionate food spending, Simonds reveals.

Often families include such non-food items as soap, paper products, tobacco, and alcoholic beverages in their food budgets. These were not included when the USDA calculated the per cent of income spent for food.

The 16 per cent figure is not meant to represent the normal or average food spending. It is used to determine trends in national food spending, the economist points out.

The proportion of income used for food is affected by several factors—

Ohio scientists release new inbred corn lines

WOOSTER — Two new inbred corn lines with significantly improved tolerance to two major virus diseases have been released to seed producers and plant breeders by the Ohio corn breeding program. The new inbreds were developed through the cooperative efforts of agronomists of the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center and the Agricultural Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The two new inbred lines are designated Ohio 509A (Oh509A) and Ohio 513 (Oh513). The research team responsible for their development includes agronomists E.J. Dollinger, OARDC, and W.R. Findley, USDA.

BOTH LINES are among a few which have greater tolerance to maize dwarf mosaic virus (MDMV) and maize chlorotic dwarf virus (MCDV) than inbred lines presently being used in hybrid combinations. It will be several years before farmers start growing hybrids of the new lines — plant breeders and seed producers must first increase the seed supply of the inbreds then combine them in single and double cross hybrids.

Inbred Oh509A was developed by crossing and backcrossing two parent lines, B37 and Oh7B. Findley and Dollinger say B37, an Iowa-developed inbred, is the most widely used public-released corn line in the U.S. because it yields very well over a wide range of growing conditions and combines well to form hybrids. Because of its high susceptibility to MDMV, however, B37 has seen only limited use in hybrids grown in virus-infected areas. The Oh7B inbred was the source of virus tolerance.

The corn breeders report that Oh509A has good tolerance to both MDMV and MCDV. Plants of the new inbred average about 8 inches shorter and have two more and slightly broader leaves than those of inbred B37. Hybrids involving Oh509A have been essentially equal to comparable hybrids involving B37 in yield, standability, grain moisture at harvest, and days to mid-soil.

The development of the other inbred, Oh513, was started a number of years ago by USDA corn breeder G.F. Sprague at Beltsville, Md. Findley and Dollinger continued the effort which involved a series of crosses and backcrosses with an Ohio inbred (Oh07) and a very late-maturing Louisiana inbred (L97).

Oh513 is highly tolerant to MDMV and MCDV and has some tolerance to northern leaf blight caused by Helminthosporium turcicum (a fungus). The inbred flowers about 10 days later than Oh07 but comparable hybrids involving these inbreds are similar in days to maturity and yield. However, hybrids involving Oh513 have inferior stalk quality.

THE OHIO scientists expect Oh509A to be the most widely used of the two new inbreds. However, Oh513 is expected to prove a more desirable breeding source than the Oh07 inbred for developing hybrids resistant to MDMV and MCDV. Both inbred lines are suitable for hybrids which will be grown in the southern half of the corn-belt and southern states.

Seed for Oh509A and Oh513 will be maintained at OARDC and are available to plant breeders and seed

Soybean firm admits guilt at Hillsboro

SOYBEANS, Inc., pleaded guilty in Hillsboro Municipal Court recently to a charge by the Ohio Department of Agriculture of operating an Agricultural Commodity Warehouse without a license.

The commodity warehouse and processing facility at New Vienna, was fined $100 plus court costs.

Gene R. Abercrombie, director of the Ohio Department of Agriculture, said, "Soybeans, Inc. is a previous licensee of the department. We had requested the firm to make certain changes and supply additional financial information about its organization in order to meet the financial requirements under which the facility was licensed."

When this information was not received, the Department notified them to cease operation. Subsequent investigation revealed that the facility was continuing to operate after receipt of the Department's notice. Charges of operating without a license were then filed against the corporation.

"One of the licensing requirements under this program is financial stability to protect grain producers who sell and store their commodities through these facilities. In other words, we must determine that licensees are financially sound and can meet their obligations on demand of farmers and producers who sell commodities to them," Abercrombie said.

The municipal court action does not cancel Soybeans, Inc. eligibility to re-apply for a license if they meet the requirements of state law and regulations of the Department.

The cooperative corn breeding program in Ohio was initiated in 1929. Over the years more than 30 inbred lines of corn have been developed and released for use in commercial hybrids. Goal of the continuing research is development of corn lines capable of yields as high or higher than those now being used and which offer increased genetic resistance to specific insects and diseases.

DOES EVERYTHING BUT KICK THE PAIL OVER — Bessy the Cow, a creation of Mrs. Glenn Estep's and Mrs. Glenn Merritt's combined Jeffersonville first grade classes, recreates the days of making bread and butter and buttermilk. Bessy has eyelashes and a moving tail. All 45 children assisted in her construction.

Jeff pupils learn 'the basics'

By MARK THELLMAN
JEFFERSONVILLE — "They thought milk came from a carton!" said Mrs. Glenn Estep, teacher at Jeffersonville Elementary School when she was asked what prompted her first grade class and the first grade class taught by Mrs. Glenn Merritt to create a life-size, papier mache (pulped paper) cow and have a day of making butter, buttermilk, and bread.

The project originally started for the combined first grade classes totaling 45 pupils at the end of January and culminated this week.

Fred Stires built the cow's wooden frame. Chicken wire was wrapped around it and papier mache followed.

Mrs. Estep explained the cow is painted to resemble a Holstein since this is the largest breed of dairy cow in the country and the most commonly seen, especially in Ohio.

Ron Burke, president of the Holstein Association, serving five counties including Fayette, paid a special visit to the class.

He gave the children and their teachers a plaque — a decoupage Holstein cow — in appreciation for their choosing the Holstein for their model.

THE CHILDREN churned butter and every child had the opportunity to work the dasher and see the butter form. They also kneaded dough and learned about making bread.

Both these activities exposed them to liquid and dry measures — a practical lesson in arithmetic.

Mrs. Estep and Mrs. Merritt both have farm backgrounds. Mrs. Estep commented that she had to milk two cows before school every day, and making bread, butter and buttermilk, was far from new.

The two teachers extend their thanks to everyone who helped with the project, especially the teacher's aides: Mrs. Hazel Warnock, Mrs. Joan Straley, Mrs. Peggy Lovett, Mrs. Sue Frazier, Mrs. Marie Stires, Mrs. Ruth Curry, Mrs. Jean Higgins and Mrs. Donna Rayburn.

Mothers giving help were Mrs. James Spargur and Mrs. John Butcher. Jim McDonald and Mrs. Anita Allen helped with the clean-up, and Gordon McCarty, school principal, backed the project enthusiastically.

See blacks demanding more power

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson warned the national Democratic party Friday night that blacks will continue to demand proportionate representation.

Black faces and viewpoints have come to office in 105 American cities, but their percentage of the whole is too small, Jackson told a fund raiser for Black Elected Democrats of Ohio.

"The importance of continuing and strengthening that input can hardly be overemphasized. We are engaged in a struggle for our very survival in this nation," Jackson said.

He labeled these times of "increased conservatism and repression" and urged blacks to organize local precincts, counties and states before talking about "delivering" anything on a national scale.

"At this point, many black elected officials are in office in spite of their political organizations, not because of them," he said.

"There is no effort to organize black voters of a specific area and these officials have been elected on the basis of charisma or a burning local issue," Jackson stated.

The recently-elected mayor deplored the fact that Blacks "are rich in ballots" but economically impoverished and unrepresented in countless counties in the "Black Belt of the South."

He said blacks are not swimming in the Watergate scandal because "luckily, this time, we are not included in the high-level wheeling and dealing that runs this country."

Tractor-trailer rig found near Toledo

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—A tractor-trailer rig reportedly stolen while parked in a truck stop, was found Friday in an industrial park south of here. Its cargo of 36,781 pounds of beef, valued at $45,000, was missing.

The driver, Gaylord L. Espich of Fort Wayne, Ind., told FBI agents he left the keys to the unlocked cab while he ate at the truck stop. The shipment was en route from Nebraska to Springfield, Mass.

Cooler air was moving into Ohio Saturday with continuing showers expected to become mixed with snow during the afternoon and night in the northern portions of the state. The National Weather Service said snow accumulations there were unlikely.

Lows tonight were forecast in the 30s and highs Sunday in the 50s and 60s.

Early Saturday a large low pressure area was centered in northwest Ohio moving eastward. Temperatures were forecast to climb into the low 50s north and in the low 60s south before the cooler air moved into the state Saturday afternoon.

Rains were general over Ohio Friday as low pressure approached the state. Columbus had over two inches of rain. Amounts varied to as little as a few hundredths of an inch at Toledo.

Temperatures were also varied from north to south. Toledo had a high of 37 while the upper 60s were reported along the Ohio River.

A chance of showers Monday through Wednesday. Highs in the 50s and 60s, lows in the 40s.

Cincy teachers threaten boycott

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—The Cincinnati Teachers Association is threatening to disrupt classes by boycotting work to attend a mass meeting in an effort to settle its 1974 contract.

Harriet Russell, CTA president, said the organization's Representative Assembly has authorized the mass meeting before April 10. She declined to name the day.

The meeting would begin at 6:30 a.m. and "take half a day," she said. Miss Russell said an agreement is needed by April 8 if teachers are to collect a raise this pay period.

GROWERS STACK THESE TWO UP AGAINST ALL THE OTHERS!!

It's true! No other combination of weed killers works better than this one in corn or soybeans grown on variable soils — soils that vary more than 1% to 2% in organic matter in the same field.

Mix them together in the spray tank and get these advantages:

- controls both broadleaves and grasses
- stops spotty weed control
- easy crop rotation... if corn fails, replant to soybeans
- easy to mix, easy to apply

With any chemical, follow labeling instructions and warnings carefully.

Minimize carryover — and control grasses plus broadleaves with Lasso plus atrazine.

Lasso plus atrazine tank mix controls yellow, green and giant foxtail, fall panicum, pigweed, smartweed, common ragweed and many more grasses and broadleaves; reduces competition from hard-to-control weeds like buttonweed.

And you minimize carryover possibilities. Because Lasso by itself leaves no carryover, and you use less atrazine in the tank mix.

Opinion And Comment

Again: Those tax loopholes

Judicious optimism suggests that this may be the year when Congress will tie off holes in the tax net which allow many wealthy Americans to get by with minimal income taxes or none at all. Reports of how the rich are able to use the tax laws to their advantage always bring talk of reform.

This time around such talk has been given fresh impetus by disclosure of President Nixon's small payments on a large income in 1970 and 1971.

Though his annual income exceeded a quarter of a million dollars, the President paid Internal Revenue well under a thousand in each of those years. In each instance the amount was less than that paid by a $10,000-a-year worker with a wife and two children to support.

The President was able to get off so easily because he claimed a deduction of more than half a million on vice presidential papers turned over to the government. It was all, as the saying goes, "entirely legal."

This is the rubric, too, under which other wealthy citizens annually claim huge deductions. Like the President, they take advantage of special tax law provisions. This always galls ordinary citizens who, finding themselves unable to profit by such provisions, wind up paying more tax than others with incomes several times as large.

The most galling thing of all is the annual disclosure that some people with incomes above $100,000 pay no income tax whatever—not one cent. There were 402 in this category in 1972, it has been disclosed. But that is by no means the whole story: thousands of the wealthy who don't quite avoid income taxes altogether pay only a few hundred dollars.

For the most part, all this falls within the law, yet that is exactly the point: the provisions which make preference income deductions allowable are those "loopholes" one hears about.

While some of the loopholes are more defensible than others, Congress could take one across-the-board action which would at least reduce inequities. It could raise to a more realistic level the minimum tax which must be paid even by those with preference income.

The Senate has done this, but the minimum-tax increase has gotten sidetracked in the Finance Committee. It should be moved out, and approved without further delay.

Meanwhile, the House Ways and Means Committee should be held to its chairman's promise that broad tax reform proposals will be sent to the floor for action at this session.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

Baker in CIA Land

WASHINGTON — Of all the characters in the Watergate drama none rose higher and fell faster than Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee.

What Baker is up to now as his graph drops lower is a mystification as dense as anything that has happened in the great Watergate scandal.

He seems to be trying to put blame on the Central Intelligence Agency for the coverup. He does this by running his own hearings and by bringing Richard Helms back from his ambassadorial post in Iran for a third going-over. That ended, incidentally, with Chairman Sam Ervin, who exercised his right to sit in on Baker's private show, giving Helms a clean bill of health.

In the course of his mystification, Baker waves top secret memoranda which he alone has been allowed to see. But leaks and counter-leaks give clues that serve Baker's purpose if that purpose is indeed to draw in the CIA.

BUT WHY? A widely held belief is that Baker is being nudged by the White House. The nudging agent is Charles W. Colson, one of the seven Watergate figures indicted on March 1 who still keeps a close connection with the White House. Baker denied he is "cooperating" with Colson.

Colson brought in as a White House consultant that compulsive spy, E. Howard Hunt Jr. Hunt's past with the CIA, his work with the White House "plumbers," his intervention in the ITT case, his part in the break-in of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, that is the Byzantine maze Baker professes to be following. One of those convicted for the Watergate break-in, Hunt is free on bond pending an appeal.

Author of the declaration that he would trample on his grandmother if need be to insure Richard Nixon's reelection, Colson in the first flush of the Nixon landslide was a happy man. He would leave the White House to become counsel for the teamsters union at a retainer reported to be $100,000 a year.

Since his indictment he has left the firm, although he continues out of his law office to do business for the teamsters.

A RECENT LAWSUIT filed by James Hoffa, former Teamsters president released from prison on parole by Nixon, charges Nixon and Attorney General William Saxbe with a deal engineered by Colson to deny Hoffa union office until 1980 with a reward for Colson as union counsel.

A party to this arrangement, so the suit charged, was Frank E. Fitzsimmons who became union president after Hoffa went to prison.

As for Colson's motives, that is speculation. If the CIA can be shown to have been a principal partner that will give a certain institutional authority with in the background the warning that national security must not be infringed — helping those caught in the net. And this will be so not only for Colson but for his friend and colleague at Brown University, Howard Hunt.

The staff of the Ervin committee is now beginning to put together a draft report of the hearings. The final report is not due until May 28, but committee sources say that in light of the thousands of pages of testimony to be combed over this is a short time.

Each senator on the committee will feel obligated to reach his own conclusions and then presumably they will be fused into a common finding.

BAKER'S EXPEDITION into the tortuous reaches of the CIA jungle does not, according to committee sources, come under the terms of the resolution authorizing the Watergate investigation.

The committee was charged with investigating criminal activity in connection with the 1972 elections. Whether the CIA, in furnishing Hunt a red wig and a voice transformer when he started sleuthing the ITT case, comes under his definition is doubtful.

As the ranking Republican on the committee Baker can submit a minority report. But if he should devote this to his private safari into CIA land, the full committee might challenge its relevance.

It is hard to realize that when the sensational hearings were at the top of their television ratings Baker was seriously talked about as a possible Republican presidential candidate.

When he appeared on "Face the Nation" he was not asked a single question about presidential ambitions. But perhaps his reward comes from serving his beleaguered President.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

Being beastly to Brezhnev

The word is out that Moscow is disillusioned by detente. Whether this feeling was generated by the survival of Israel or the refusal of the American government — in this instance Congress — to award the Soviets "Most Favored Nation" status is unclear.

But apparently Leonid Brezhnev feels that President Nixon and Secretary Kissinger let him down. If we had, for example, been genuinely interested in reconciliation, we certainly would not have pressed for basic human rights at the European Security Conference in Geneva.

And the stubborn behavior of our arms negotiators in Vienna, who have been insisting that an American cut in airborne nuclear-delivery systems be matched by a Soviet decrease in intermediate range ballistic missiles, is not good detente form. (As everyone knows, Soviet missiles are defensive in character, while our aircraft are obviously offensive.)

What I am now waiting for is a series of articles, based on State Department or White House backgrounders (interviews with sources not to be identified except as "persons close to Secretary Kissinger," or some such evasion), making the point that we shouldn't be beastly to Brezhnev — that he is the best Soviet dictator we've got.

DON'T LAUGH. There is presently quite a body of argument that President Kennedy ruined Nikita Khrushchev by forcing the latter to pull the missiles out of Cuba. If Kennedy had reflected a bit, the line runs, he would have realized that missiles in Cuba were a small price to pay for the survival of such a genial chap as Khrushchev. But with his usual rashness, Kennedy bounced on Nice Nikita and ruined the First Secretary's standing at the Politburo.

The picture one gets from these Kremlinological psychodramas is that Khrushchev, mobilizing the "doves" on the Politburo and in the Central Committee, kept the "hawks" in check. Thus he was a "force for peace" and his downfall was a blow to all right-thinking people.

Overlooked in this touching tale is the fact that Khrushchev was the Butcher of Budapest, whose reputation as a "dove" derived largely from his de-

Stalinization activities—which were irrelevant to the conduct of foreign affairs.

Once, on a trip to Greece, with that friendly peasant brutality, he reminded the Athens government that playing around with NATO could bring a missile that would take out all their cherished archeological treasures. Perhaps because he chuckled, when he talked about "a hail of rockets," he was classified as a "dove."

Now we are probably going to learn about poor beleaguered Brezhnev, the honest dictator who made the mistake of trusting the United States. From the outset (we will be advised), there were "hawks" in the Politburo who sneered at Brezhnev's naivety — Suslov, for example, has been sharpening his dagger for years.

As the United States became more and more uncooperative (rescuing Israel, for example), Brezhnev was forced to make concessions to these hardliners.

Is it an accident that now the Minister of Defense, Marshal Grechko, and Andropov, the head of the KGB, are full members of the Politburo?

They are hemming Brezhnev in, and if he goes with him. The whole point of this exercise will be that we have a vested interest in Brezhnev's survival.

THERE IS, of course, something to be said for the maxim that the known devil is preferable to the unknown. (It was in this spirit that Russian Jews used to pray for the health of the Czar!) But at the same time it is a manifestation of bureaucratic arteriosclerosis.

If I heard the argument once in Washington, I heard it 50 times: "The alternative to X (Nasser, Franco, De Gaulle, Sukarno, etc.) is chaos." To which I often replied, "What's wrong with chaos?"

This was thinking the unthinkable, but in part I was quite serious: a succession crisis in the Soviet Union, for example, results in a total concentration on domestic affairs, among them personal and bureaucratic survival.

As far as detente is concerned, the Soviets did not participate because they were fond of Mr. Nixon and Henry: they believed it to be in their national interest.

They were right, and if Brezhnev dropped dead tomorrow, I predict his successor would continue the policy. The real brawl inside the Politburo must center on China and, give the Soviet strategy of avoiding a two-front war, detente makes real military sense.

One can even visualize the Politburo "hawks" criticizing Brezhnev for getting mixed up in marginal sideshows like the Middle East when he should be clobbering Peking!

In short, let's not have any favorite Soviet dictator. We're not in that game.

"INCIDENTALLY, WHAT ARE YOU DOING WITH THE MONEY YOU'RE SAVING ON GASOLINE?"

Haile Selassie eyes corruption

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Emperor Haile Selassie, trying to avert his second major crisis in a month, has appointed a military-civilian tribunal to investigate government corruption.

Some officials and foreign diplomats said the investigation might further hamper the efforts of Prime Minister Endalkachew Mekonnen to complete his month-old government and quell the string of mutinies and civil disorders convulsing the African kingdom.

A government broadcast announced the appointment of two army officers and five civilians to the tribunal. It was charged with "bringing to court those officials found lacking in integrity."

There was no immediate reaction from dissident military enlisted men who had demanded an all-military tribunal, presumably including non-commissioned ranks as well as officers.

The broadcast said "past and present governments" would be investigated. Endalkachew and many of the members of his cabinet are holdovers, and the possibility of prosecution has already discouraged one man from taking a cabinet appointment. There are also persistent reports that a number of ministers want to resign.

Meanwhile, unrest continued to spread, fueled by dissatisfaction with the small feudal upper class that runs the country and its failure to cope with the effects of severe drought and inflation.

University students in Addis Ababa resumed a strike after only three days back in classes. The airports at Addis Ababa and Asmara, the country's two chief cities, were closed to all foreign planes by a strike of ground personnel.

Sources in Asmara, northern Ethiopia's chief city, said army troops there arrested an air force captain and four airmen on charges of "plotting against the empire." Tension between the army and air force also was reported escalating at the Debre Zeit air base near Addis Ababa; paratroopers loyal to the government were reported to have surrounded dissident airmen holding several officers prisoner on the base.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Gisela made German verboten for her

DEAR ABBY: Paul and I decided not to get married until after he had his army duty behind him, so he enlisted and ended up in Germany for a year. When he came back he told me that while he was in Germany he had fallen in love with a girl named Gisela, but the minute he saw me again he realized that I was the one he loved, so we took up where we left off and made plans to marry.

Later I found out that up until a month before Paul and I got married, he was still hearing from Gisela. He called her long distance a few times and even sent her money and tried to arrange for her to come over here.

After we were married he broke off all contact with Gisela, so everything turned out fine, but it left me with a problem. Now every time I hear the name Gisela I go into a violent rage. Also I hate everything German. I won't let my husband watch anything German on TV and I won't even have a German chocolate cake in the house! If I hear the word "German" on the TV, I turn off the program.

I'm afraid if I don't get over this hating everything German I'll drive my husband crazy, and ruin my marriage. Any advice?

HURT IN CHICAGO

DEAR HURT: You're lucky you don't live in Germantown, Pa. You'd have to move. Your jealousy is understandable, but it's become obsessive. Further, your prejudice against an entire nation is unfair and childish so put aside your anti-German attitude. If you don't, your marriage will be kaput.

DEAR ABBY: I am almost ashamed to write this, but you are my last hope.

I am a 44-year-old man who has to take a plane occasionally, and my problem is my terrible fear of flying. I have to take about three real stiff drinks before I can get on a plane. I don't like to arrive at my destination half-plastered, but I usually do. I am not ordinarily a drinking man, but it's the only way I can face a flight.

Do the airlines have any program or course for people like me? If they don't they should have because I can't be the only person with this problem.

NOBIRD

DEAR NO: I inquired of several major airlines, and there's no such program in existence. But if you will tell the stewardess about your problem when you board, she'll give you special attention. It's a worthwhile try. She's trained to provide the passengers with more than coffee, tea or milk.

DEAR ABBY: Is it true that you had a Jewish father?

3 suits are filed against book stores

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Hamilton County Prosecutor Simon Leis Jr. filed three suits Friday charging operators of adult book stores with selling films that are patently offensive in sexual depiction.

Named were the Sin City Book Store, G&W Book Store and T&B Enterprises. Leis also named the building owners in the actions.

Leis asked the Hamilton County Common Pleas Court to prohibit defendants from marketing such material.

Improvements finished at Country Club

A number of improvements have been completed at the Washington Country Club in preparation for the 1974 summer season.

Club pro Tony Capuana said a new fence has been constructed around the nine-hole course and the interior of the clubhouse has been refurbished with a paint job. A new rug has been installed in the ladies' locker room.

Capuana said the greens have been mowed and presently are being fertilized. Plans have also been launched for draining some standing water from various locations on the course.

The spring and summer events will actually be launched with the annual Easter Sunday family dinner which will be held April 14.

The women's golfing events will open the first Wednesday in May and continue through September. The men's golfing leagues will start play the first Wednesday and Friday in May.

The Country Club's annual membership meeting will be held at the clubhouse at 7:30 p.m. Monday. Three new trustees to serve three-year terms will be elected in addition to presentation of reports from various committee chairmen.

Trustees whose terms expire are John Aills, Donald F. Crabtree and Roger F. Miller, the club's president. Six candidates have been presented by the nominating committee. They are Ralph Douglass, Horace L. Jacobs, Charles W. Mustine, Loren Noble, Warren J. Pollock and James R. Wilson.

Donald Long is currently the club's vice president and other board members besides Aills and Crabtree are Burnham J. Light, Mrs. Harry Thrailkill, Paul Thornhill, George Walker and William Mount.

Capuana said the deadline for paying the annual club dues is Monday.

Film boosts sale of exorcism medals

By CLINTSWIFT
Associated Press Writer

CANFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The revival of interest in exorcism has been a blessing for the Catholic Art Guild. The Guild, a 10-member lay firm manufacturing medallions in this Youngstown suburb, says it has been flooded recently with inquiries about its "anti-Satan" medal.

The St. Benedict medal was offered in February 1972 as part of a collection called "The 12 Greatest Medals of Christendom."

There were few requests for copies from the company's reserve of broken sets, recalls executive director Theodore A. Parent.

"But about last December, when 'The Exorcist' movie began to make headlines, we started noticing the calls and letters," he says. "For a stock item we considered a liability tying up capital, we've since collected nearly a hundred orders."

The St. Benedict medal is one of only two officially recognized by the Catholic Church and installed in Roman ritual, Parent claims. One

Catholic publication reports the medal was approved by Pope Benedict XIV in 1741.

It is considered the church's exorcism medal because Benedict often employed the sign of the cross in performing miracles and overcoming temptations of the devil.

THE GUILD'S medal shows Benedict holding the cross in one hand and the Holy Rule in the other. On the reverse side is a cross surrounded by a series of letters.

Parents says the meaning of the letters was lost for centuries until an old manuscript unearthed in a German monastery in the 17th century revealed the letters stood for a prayer.

Translated from Latin, the prayer said:

"Begone Satan. Suggest not to me thy vain things. The cup thou profferest me is evil. Drink thou thy poison."

THE CHURCH'S ritual provides a special exorcism for St. Benedict medals before blessing, Parent says.

IN DEMAND — This "anti-Satan" medal, produced by the Catholic Art Guild in Canfield, Ohio, has become a sought-after item since the release of the film, "The Exorcist."

The front shows St. Benedict holding the cross in one hand and the Holy Rule in the other. On the reverse side is a cross surrounded by letters.

The medal may be worn about the neck, dipped in medicine to heal the sick or attached to home or car to call down God's blessing.

The medal on which the Guild's piece is based was struck in 1880 to mark the 400th anniversary of St. Benedict's birth in 480 A.D., Parent says.

Feeling a special debt, the Guild is considering a special issue six years from now to commemorate the saint's 1500th birthday, he says.

'Poster Child' selected for Speech-Hearing Month

CHILLICOTHE — Jenny Barlage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barlage, of Chillicothe, has been chosen as the National Poster Child for Speech and Hearing Month in May.

Jenny is a 3½-year-old child who has a hearing impairment. Her mother brought her to the South Central Ohio Speech and Hearing Center in May of 1973 because she was not developing language. At the time, her older sister was enrolled in therapy for a speech problem.

In addition to lack of language, Mrs. Barlage reported that Jenny used mostly gestures to express her needs. She seemed to be a very frustrated, distractible child.

When her parents took her out in public, she just wouldn't sit still. She wanted to see everything. Jenny did not respond to conversation or sounds behind her back.

WHEN JENNY was brought to the South Central Center, she had to be taught to respond to sound. Gradually,

she was conditioned, until finally an accurate hearing test could be performed. During this time language and speech reading activities were initiated. Jenny was fitted with a body type hearing aid, and rapidly began to pick up words.

Mr. and Mrs. Barlage were counseled about Jenny's problem and how to deal with it at home. They incorporated language building activities into their daily routine. Jenny has two older sisters, Debbie, 10, Cheryl, 7, and a brother, Henry, age 11.

The family will be flown to Washington D.C. in May to participate in activities for Speech and Hearing Month at the White House. Funds for this trip will be raised locally.

Sohio rips Metzenbaum

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The president of The Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) charged that statements made by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum about the company's financial standings are reckless and false.

"His latest blast falsely charges self dealing by Sohio and BP Oil, but acknowledges that he doesn't have all the facts," Sohio's president Alton W. Whitehouse said in a news release Friday. BP is a major stockholder of Sohio.

"The facts of the matter are plain," said Whitehouse. "Sohio is a crude-short company and its crude oil supply in recent months has been tight. It has been buying oil where it could around the world at going market prices."

Sohio said it purchased oil from BP in January for $11.66 per barrel and that oil from other sources, excluding Canada, cost Sohio $15.18 per barrel.

Metzenbaum said that Sohio's reported $57 million increase in profits was actually $200 million and that the company concealed that fact by a special accounting technique.

What is the evil secret?

On a rainy, gloomy day the deserted Wilbert mansion has two callers: interior decorator Holly Glowstep and wealthy Durwood Cooke.

Cooke has hired Holly to restore the mansion to its turn-of-the-century elegance so that elderly Abigail Wilbert will be happy there in her last days.

When she has completed the job, Holly invites gentleman criminologist Rip Kirby to inspect it. But Holly's recreation of the past turns into a nightmare of the present when strange, evil things occur in the eerie mansion — things that threaten the lives of innocent people.

Remembering the mysterious family squabble that caused the Wilberts to fade from the old New York's social picture, Rip delves into the past to solve a weird mystery of the present.

Don't miss the suspenseful new story in "Rip Kirby," starting Monday, April 8, in The Record-Herald.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Although we've baked dozens of loaves of banana quick bread in our test kitchen, we never thought of adding peanut butter to the batter until a friend who lives in the Canal Zone and a reader from Jackson, Miss., sent us their recipes for such a bread. Then we came upon the combination in "Cook-in — A Beginner's Guide to the Fun of Cooking" by Kathleen Dunning Fisher (David White). On testing all three recipes our tasters agreed that Kathleen's was by far the best because it made the tenderest and most delicate loaf. Here is our adaptation of her nutritious bread.

BANANA BREAD

2 cups unsifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar

2 large eggs
2 to 3 ripe bananas
1/2 cup crunchy peanut butter
Grease a 9 by 5 by 3 inch loaf pan. Thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Cream butter and sugar. Beat eggs until thickened and lemon color; add to butter-sugar mixture and blend. With a fork, finely mashed enough banana to make 1 cup; add peanut butter and blend. Into butter-sugar-egg mixture stir the flour mixture, in about 4 additions, alternately with banana mixture until just smooth each time. Turn into prepared pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 50 to 70 minutes. Let stand on a wire rack for 10 minutes; loosen edges and turn out on rack; turn right side up. Cool completely. Bread slices well fresh from the oven or cold.

Tech college pros, cons get airing

MACON — Action of Ohio's education leaders is being challenged by people who believe they were betrayed in a proposal for establishing a five-county general and technical college district.

Dr. James A. Norton, chancellor of the Ohio Board of Regents, along with board member Mary Ellen Ludium and a panel of educational leaders, held a public forum Thursday night at the Tri-County Academic Center in Brown County regarding the proposed technical of which the Tri-County center would be a part.

But most of the 300 people attending the session, led by State Rep. Harry C. Malott, opposed making Tri-County a part of the new district. About half of the audience were Tri-County students who, with some of their professors, said they wanted to continue as a branch of the University of Cincinnati.

For more than two hours, Dr. Norton withstood a barrage of questions and attacks, but patiently maintained that the action of the Board of Regents was designed to provide for the Tri-county students, along with the entire five-county area, educational advantages not now available.

Malott criticized the regents and said he would continue his opposition to their plans. Others said the regents were ignoring the will of the people.

WHEN Sen. William Mussey appealed to Dr. Norton to ask the Board of Regents to reconsider their plans for creating the new district composed of Adams, Brown, Clinton, Fayette and Highland counties, the chancellor said he could not do so in good conscience.

Mussey had suggested leaving Tri-County with the University of Cincinnati and creating a special technical college district with the former Air Force base site at Wilmington as the campus. The proposed five-county district initially is to be made up of the Tri-County center and the former Clinton County Air Force Base facilities, part of which already are being used by the Great Oaks Joint Vocational School District.

Dr. Norton said it would be unfair to ask his staff to come up with such a program. Dividing the five-county area into smaller districts would limit opportunities for younger people, he said, adding that "we must face up to the larger sense of a community."

He also noted that while UC has paid tremendous attention to the Tri-County center, it can't be expected to devote as much attention to Tri-County as a separate board for the five-county area made up of people from the area would give to educational developments there.

BOTH Dr. Norton and Mrs. Ludium emphasized that the five-county plan calls for the new district being governed by a board from the area. Plans call for two board members from each of the four largest counties, one from the smallest, probably Adams.

Mrs. Ludium declared that the Board of Regents' only purpose is to provide the best possible educational opportunities for all the people. "We must be concerned about the people in all five of the counties," she added.

Tri-County students appeared most concerned about the acceptance of their diplomas if the academic center ceases to be a branch of UC and becomes part of a technical college. They were assured that diplomas from two-year technical colleges around the state are "readily accepted," and that 98 per cent of technical school graduates get jobs.

"We're talking about a multiple-campus, not a central campus," Dr. Norton said. Both technical programs and general education can be offered in a variety of communities," he said.

DR. NORTON said the Board of Regents "anticipate UC will cooperate" with the establishment of the new district. The UC board of trustees will vote Tuesday to divorce themselves from affiliation with the Tri-County center.

Dr. Robert O'Neil, UC executive vice president for academic affairs, told the group he has "every confidence the Board of Regents will expand higher education in the five-county area."

The Board of Regents already has purchased a site for a new Tri-County college near Eastern High School where Tri-County classes are now held at night and has made available $1.4 million for construction of the new facilities. Dr. Norton said plans for the new college are proceeding, and that it is expected contracts will be awarded and ground broken by early 1975.

Teachers vote approval of Forest Hills pact

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Teachers in the suburban Forest Hills School District Friday voted to accept a wage offer from the school board, averting a strike called for April 8.

Carol Irwin, president of the Forest Hills Teachers Association, said the base pay for beginning teachers was raised from $7,375 to $7,950. Teachers had rejected several previous offers.

The district has 431 teachers in nine schools and an enrollment of 8,663 students.

Boyle testimony to start Monday

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — The way has been cleared for opening statements on Monday in the trial of W.A. "Tony" Boyle, charged with ordering the killing of a United Mine Workers Union rival.

Selection of a jury of nine men and three women and two alternates was completed Friday, but Judge Francis Catania of the Delaware County Common Pleas Court dismissed them for the weekend without a formal swearing-in ceremony.

"They will be sworn in Monday," said special prosecutor Richard Sprague.

The 72-year-old former UMW president is accused of ordering the 1969 slayings of Joseph "Jock" Yablonski, his wife Margaret and their 25-year-old daughter Charlotte. They were slain at their western Pennsyl-

House blast, fire loss set at $100,000

SYLVANIA, Ohio (AP)—Firemen estimated damage at $100,000 to the home of Ervin Zahn in a blaze believed to have started when paint cans exploded in his basement.

The explosions Friday lifted the living room floor about eight inches, officials said, and caused gas from a furnace fuel line to begin burning.

Report cash stolen from deputy registrar

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Rosemary Welage, 44, a deputy registrar for the Ohio Bureau of Motor Vehicles, reported the theft of $.837 in money paid for new auto license tags.

Mrs. Welage sells the tags in a Mount Washington section clothing store. The money was kept in an unlocked drawer, she said.

vania home Dec. 31, 1969, three weeks after Yablonski lost a heated union election to Boyle.

The government alleges the shootings were carried out by hired gunmen financed by $20,000 in union funds authorized by Boyle.

The Boyle victory was set aside in 1972 by a federal judge and later that year a Yablonski supporter, Arnold Miller, ousted Boyle as UMW president.

Present for the first time in court Friday was Joseph "Chip" Yablonski, son of the man Boyle is charged with having killed.

Yablonski sat on the first-row bench

behind the prosecution table and stared frequently at the defendant. Boyle appeared to ignore him.

Yablonski, now general counsel for the UMW, told newsmen during a recess, "It's nearly over."

Boyle remained in the courthouse nearly four hours after the session recessed early Friday afternoon. He was given a brief physical examination before being returned to Riddle Memorial Hospital, where he is staying during the trial.

Opposing lawyers, with Boyle present, spent an hour in Judge Catania's chambers after the five-day jury selection was completed.

Boyle was brought here for the trial from a federal penitentiary hospital in Springfield, Mo., where he has been serving a three-year term for illegal use of union funds.

Mets swamp Bucks 11-5

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dock Ellis says the Pittsburgh Pirates have enough pitching to win a baseball pennant this year.

If they do, they'll have to do better than Friday—when they gave up 17 hits while losing an 11-5 exhibition to the New York Mets.

"Everybody says we don't have enough pitching, but we do," said Ellis despite the Met bombardment at Bradenton, Fla. "You can't tell about pitching from these exhibition games."

Ellis believes in himself, among others, on the Pirate staff.

"We got the lefthanders—Jim Rooker, Jerry Reuss and Ken Brett to handle the West Coast teams this year," said Ellis. "San Francisco, Los Angeles and Cincinnati killed us last year."

In Friday's other exhibition games, the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Cincinnati Reds 5-4; the Montreal Expos trimmed the Detroit Tigers 7-5; the Kansas City Royals nipped the Chicago White Sox 5-4; the Cleveland Indians stopped the Chicago Cubs 4-0; the Cincinnati "B" team beat the Philadelphia Phillies "B" squad 3-1; the San Francisco Giants nipped the San Diego Padres 3-2 in 11 innings; the Milwaukee Brewers trimmed the Oakland A's 9-4; the Baltimore Orioles crushed the New York Yankees 7-1; the Texas Rangers trimmed the Houston Astros 3-0; the Boston Red Sox whipped the Minnesota Twins 11-7 and the California Angels beat the Los Angeles

Dodgers 7-5.

The Mets' 17 hits included four by Ken Boswell and three by Lute Barnes. George Theodore, a reserve outfielder last season, drove in four runs with a home run, single and infield out for the Mets.

Jose Cruz doubled home two tying runs in the eighth inning and scored on Ken Reitz' single to trigger the Cardinals past the Reds.

Ron Fairly's two-run homer and Barry Foote's two-run triple helped Montreal over Detroit. Jim Wohlford's pinchdoubt off Terry Forster in the ninth gave the Royals its victory over the White Sox.

The Indians jumped on Milt Pappas for three runs in the second and third innings and went on to beat the Cubs.

Jim Lonborg hurled seven scoreless innings, leading the Phillies over the Reds in a "split-squad" game.

Mike Phillips singled home the tie-breaking run and pitcher Gary Lavelle drew a bases-loaded walk for the eventual winner in the 11th inning, leading San Francisco past San Diego.

George Scott's grand slam homer in the seventh inning broke a 4-4 tie and lifted Milwaukee over Oakland.

Baltimore erupted for five runs in the fifth inning and Dave McNally allowed just six hits to help the Orioles beat the Yankees.

Three Texas pitchers held Houston to five hits and Jim Fregosi hit a solo homer off loser Larry Dierker to give the Rangers a decision over the Astros.

In Friday nights action tournament favorite Dayne Puckett All-Stars defeated Circleville Oil 85-70. Denny Thompson and Bill Brown led the All-Stars with 26 points apiece followed by Rusch and Ball with 15 and 10 points respectively.

Circleville Oil was led by Phil Argento with 23 points following by Beatty and Mallison with 13 and 12.

In the second game Gary Thomas All-Stars were eliminated from the competition via a 80-57 loss to Credit's Construction.

Dan Beam and Jack Credit led the winners with 25 and 22 points. The All-Stars were paced by Keith Evans with 18 followed by Cooper with 16 and Wilson with 10.

The final game of the night had Harris Auction defeating Cummings Pharmacy 72-63. Earl Crosswhite paced the winners with 27 points with Larry Sticker following suit with 18. Gary Card and Mike McFarland collected 10 points also for the winners. Pursley hit for 16 points for the losers with Prater backing him up with 15 cantos.

Following Saturday's game will be the semi-final round and the final round of the tournament Sunday.

The semi-finals will start at 1:00 p.m. Sunday with the finals being played at 7 p.m. If more than one game is needed to decide a winner the second game will be played at 8:30.

Volleyball matches to be Monday night

The Washington C.H. track team and athletic department will be sponsoring a volleyball contest Monday night, pitting the WSHS faculty and the Miami Trace faculty.

The volleyball match will start at 7:30 at WSHS with admission being 50 cents.

The money will be used for a new pole vault porta-pit for the WSHS track team.

The contest will be a best three out of five matches. Each match consists of the best two out of three games.

Playing for Washington Senior High School will be head basketball coach Gary Shaffer, Jon Creamer, head track coach Dick Roth, head baseball coach Roger Mickle, head football coach Moe Pfeifer, John Skinner, Dave Kearney, Don Gibbs, Ken Hayes and Tom Rankin.

East-West cage All-Stars clash

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Gene Tormohlen, assistant Atlanta Hawks coach, surveyed the talent practicing for today's Coaches' East-West National College All-Star basketball game.

And Tormohlen liked what he saw as the 10-man squad whisked through light workouts at the University of Dayton Arena.

"There's six, maybe seven first-round draft choices playing here," said Tormohlen, a six-year veteran of National Basketball Association play with the Hawks.

"We've already got our mind made up on most of the college players, but there's some we're not sure of," Tormohlen said.

"Like Bruce King of PanAmerican. "King averaged 31 points during the season. However, we want to see what he will do against tough competition," the Hawks assistant said.

Tormohlen also believes Tom Henderson of Hawaii, like King playing for the West All-Stars, is a sure-fire first-round pick.

"He plays with a lot of savvy. He's a leader type and he reflects good coaching," Tormohlen said of the 6-foot-3 guard who played on the 1972 Olympic squad.

Tormohlen also likes Henderson's teammate on the Olympic team, North Carolina's 6-9 Bob Jones, who was playing for the East All-Stars.

"Jones is a real fine defensive player, passes real well and has great timing on the boards," the NBA coach said. "His outside shooting is suspect, though."

Tormohlen also considers 6-9 Marvin Barnes of Providence, 6-6 Bill Knight of Pittsburgh and 6-9 Len Elmore of Maryland, also on the East squad, as certain first-round draft picks.

"Barnes will go real early. He's lively, and he runs and jumps extremely well," Tormohlen said.

"Elmore's a great rebounder too," the Atlanta coach continued. "And Knight should make a good scoring NBA forward."

Tormohlen considers 6-7 Larry Robinson of Texas, who averaged more than 22 points, as a possible first-round selection.

"He's a good shooter and somebody will take him early because of it," the coach said. "He'll definitely go early in the second round if he doesn't make it in the first."

Tormohlen emphasized that a large number of hardship cases could change the first-round selection order. College players who still have eligibility remaining can apply as hardship cases and be drafted by the NBA.

Also on the East team were Donald Smith and Mike Sylvester of Dayton, Mike Robinson of Michigan State, Darrell Elston of North Carolina, Frank Kendrick of Purdue and Jay Piccola of Roanoke.

Other West players included Lon Kruger of Kansas State, Dan Anderson of Southern California, Gene Harmon of Creighton, Bernard Hardin of New Mexico, Al Eberhard of Missouri, Kevin Restani of San Francisco and Washington's Ray Price.

Harry Litwack, retired Temple coach, was the East mentor, while John "Whack" Hyder, retired Georgia Tech coach, was the West mentor. The East had a 7-4 lead in the series.

California Angels said improved

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Manager Bobby Winkles, the former college coach starting his second season as manager of the California Angels, terms his club definitely-improved, particularly defensively.

"Offensively, we'll just have to wait until I can determine which nine guys we are going to play and get them in every day so the hitting catches up with the pitching," Winkles explains.

Much of the defensive improvement comes with the addition of catcher Ellie Rodriguez from the Milwaukee Brewers.

"We had trouble with our throwing last year and we didn't throw many guys out," says Winkles. "I think that out of 144 attempted steals against us, 104 of them stole successfully and that's a terrible statistic."

The Rodriguez deal was the latest big one by rebuilding General Manager Harry Dalton. In addition to the catcher, the Angels got outfielders Ollie Brown and Joe Lahoud and pitchers Skip Lockwood and Gary Ryerson.

That deal could have a side effect — improving the confidence of center fielder Mickey Rivers. He came up to the Angels from Salt Lake City on Sept. 4 and batted .349.

Bobby Cole takes over golf lead

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "For the last three or four years, I was a very conservative player," says South African golfer Bobby Cole. "This year I've decided to attack, have a go at everything."

And his aggressive play left him with a half-dozen short birdies putts that the skinny little guy converted into a 66 and first place Friday after the second round of the $150,000 Greater New Orleans Open Golf Tournament.

Cole, the South African Open champion, but a non-winner in six years on the American tour, put together two rounds of 134, 10 under par on the windswept, 7,008-yard Lakewood Country Club course. He was one stroke in front of Larry Hinson and Lee Trevino.

Jack Nicklaus, who shared the first-round lead with veteran Miller Barber, bogeyed two of his last three holes for a 71. He was three strokes back at 137.

"Every bogey I made," said Nicklaus, who had four of them, "was the result of a solid, well-hit shot. Ah, well, such is life."

Trevino, though still complaining of putting troubles, and the slump-ridden Hinson each had 68s in the gusty, tricky winds and were tied for second just one shot out of the lead at 135.

Billingham set to open season

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Jack Billingham will take the mound for the Cincinnati Reds April 4 in the season opener with the Atlanta Braves.

The Braves have selected Carl Morton. His 1973 season record was 15-10 and Billingham was 19-10.

The Reds announced the rest of their probable pitchers after losing a 5-4 exhibition game to the St. Louis Cardinals at St. Petersburg, Fla.

On April 6 it will be left-hander Don Gullett for Cincinnati against Roric Harrison followed on April 7 by either Clay Kirby or Fred Norman for the Reds. Joe Niekro, the knuckleballer, has been selected by Atlanta.

Roger Nelson, who missed most of last season with a bad shoulder, has been impressive this spring, according to pitching coach Larry Shepard. Gary Nolan, who also was out last year, is headed for Indianapolis still complaining of arm pain.

Red Manager George "Sparky" Anderson used utility man Andy Kosko at third base Friday as an experiment, instead of Dan Driessen.

"If Driessen continues to show me he's having trouble hitting lefthand pitching, we'll play Andy at third occasionally," Anderson said.

Nine Ohioans are selected

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A panel of sports writers has selected nine Ohio players, including two each from Dayton and Cincinnati, to play in the 5th annual Ohio-Indiana all-star college basketball series next month.

The duos named Friday were Donald Smith and Mike Sylvester, who led Dayton to the NCAA tournament, and Lloyd Batts and Jesse Jemison, who paced Cincinnati to a berth in the National Invitation Tournament.

Other Ohio all-stars picked were Ed Lawrence of Mount Union, Gene Ford of Muskingum, Phil Lumpkin of Miami, Bill Brown of Ohio University and Bruce Baer of Defiance.

Quilici sees good year for twins

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Manager Frank Quilici thinks the youth program of the Minnesota Twins is ready to begin paying dividends in the West Division of the American League.

The Twins are coming off a third-place finish in 1973, with uncertainties regarding Harmon Killebrew and Tony Oliva, but with confidence of more experience.

"We had a very young team last season," said Quilici. "Our players had to learn to play together while they were finding out if they belonged in the major leagues."

"You could see the change in our club last season. It wasn't the team in September that it was in April ... it was a lot better."

Among the youngsters Quilici is counting on are Eric Soderholm, centerfielder Steve Brye, catcher Glenn Borgmann and a group of young pitchers, including Joe Decker, 10-10, and Bill Campbell, 3-3.

However, to become a contender again, the Twins need the power of Killebrew and Oliva. Killebrew, recovering from knee surgery, dislocated a shoulder in spring training and his comeback is in jeopardy.

Oliva missed most of the 1972 season with knee miseries, but came back in 1973 with a .291 average as the team's designated hitter. His gimpy knees restrict his movement on the bases when he does get on.

Minnesota's strength is its hitting. Rod Carew won his third American League batting championship last year with a .350 average. With others such as Jim Holt's .297, Oliva's .291 and Steve Braun's .283, the Twins led the majors in hitting.

Quilici would like his hitters this year to cut down on their strikeouts and provide more clutch hits. Outfielder Bob Darwin has struck out almost 300 times in his two years with the club.

The Twins should be steadier on defense this year with Brye in center, Soderholm at third and Randy Hundley, acquired from the Chicago Cubs during the offseason for George Mitterwald, as catcher.

Danny Thompson will be trying to come back from assorted injuries at shortstop. If not, the Twins are looking closely at rookie Sergio Ferrer. Jerry

Terrell, a .265 hitter as a rookie, is a capable utility man.

Holt, rookie Craig Kusick or Killebrew will share the duties at first base. Braun, being tried at left field, joins Holt, Brye, Darwin and Hisle vying for places in the outfield.

More questions confront Quilici on his pitching staff. He has no proven lefthanded starters and 23-year-old Bert Blyleven was the only standout with a 20-17 log. Ray Corbin, Decker, Campbell and young southpaw Vic Albury show promise and veteran Bill Hands, 7-10, looks like he could regain form which made him a 20-game winner with the Cubs.

The bullpen is yet another problem. The Twins haven't had adequate firemen since Ron Perranoski and Stan Williams combined to save them West Division titles in 1969 and 1970.

Tom Burgmeier was obtained from the Kansas City farm system and appears to be the leading candidate for critical bullpen duty.

Still, Quilici remains the optimist. "We've got the nucleus of a fine ball club," he says.

It's old hat to get stung by the likes of Earl Monroe, Julius Erving, Elvin Hayes and Gail Goodrich.

But pro basketball's "new season" introduced a new hero—Milwaukee Buck reserve forward Ron Williams.

Williams scored six of his 10 points in the last five minutes Friday night, rallying the Bucks for a 99-95 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers in the first game of their National Basketball Association Western Conference playoff semifinal series.

Williams, starting in place of the injured Lucius Allen, came back after being benched after he was unable to blanket Gail Goodrich who ended with 31 points.

"I felt like I wasn't contributing, but I finally got going in the second half," said Williams. "I guess I was tight in the beginning, but when I sat down I started relaxing by analyzing the game. Then I told myself I had to go back in and contribute."

The New York Knicks beat the Capital Bullets in the opening game of their best-of-7 NBA Eastern Conference semifinal series.

In the first game of the American Basketball Association playoffs, the New York Nets beat the Virginia Squires 108-96, while the San Diego Conquistadores earned fourth place in the ABA West with a 131-111 victory over the Denver Rockets.

Buffalo played Boston in an NBA Eastern Conference game today while Detroit was at Chicago in a nationally televised contest.

The Conquistadores will play the Utah Stars tonight, while San Antonio will be at Indiana in the other ABA playoff game.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led the Bucks in scoring with 35 and Bob Dandridge added 22, 14 in the second half.

GOOD YEAR FOR CHICKEN — Col. Harland Sanders, founder of Kentucky Fried Chicken, congratulates Mrs. Gere Maiden, Washington C.H. franchisee, for an outstanding performance in 1973. Mrs. Maiden served 200,000 meals last year. She and Col. Sanders were among 3,000 franchisees and other KFC people attending the company's international convention this week in Las Vegas, Nev.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

Magnanimous feelings and good sound thinking should be stressed now. While day is friendly on the whole, it COULD be upset by "minor" errors, carelessness.

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

If it is a day for rest, take it: Do not engage in needless activity and tire yourself beyond reason. In tasks, be thorough, but anxiety-free.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

Do not fret if things do not turn out exactly as you planned. No effort is lost that is sincere and carefully directed, even though certain results may be slow in coming.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

Friends, associates may want to change some plans. Consider carefully before you let yourself be disappointed; you may see new values.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Planetary influences indicate a wider scope of interest, possibly greater activity. But be careful not to overextend yourself. Big returns for worthwhile interests.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

A good day in which to review your goals and your methods of working toward their achievement. The smallest improvements could help build a stronger foundation for the future.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Fine influences. Persevere in affairs that require strong backing and character. This day has many unexpected advantages — even if you have to search some out yourself.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Stars now give you strength which can be astutely employed to benefit yourself and others. Look for the best and you will find it. Be alert to distortion of facts.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Your active mind seeks expression now. Direct it with forethought, discernment. Review investments, future plans. Change may be required.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Some beneficial influences, others less generous, but the latter can actually add zest to the day. Avoid words or actions that could bring on disagreements.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

You can hurt your cause by being too hasty, too ready to form an opinion drawn from insufficient data. Explore avenues of surer procedure.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

There are numerous ways in which to advance your interests now, but not everything will run as expected: Bear with unavoidable delays.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a powerful personality and tremendous ambition. There are few failures among those born on this date, but many of you do not realize your full potentialities. Actually, you are extremely versatile and could succeed in either the business world or in one of the professions — once you find your niche and train for it. You could do exceptionally well in art, music, literature or the theater; would also make an excellent diagnostician, lawyer or statesman. Curb a tendency to be overly critical of others.

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

Be explicit but not short in voicing opinions. There is a tendency now to belittle the aspirations and ideas of others. Curb!

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

Mixed planetary influences. You may alternate between quick, aggressive moves and periods of slowing down, for no apparent reason. Aim at stabilization.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

Don't be coerced into anything that seems at all inappropriate, but do listen to all sides of a reasonable discussion. A good day for making agreements, long-range plans.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

Planetary influences now indicate progress, quicker advancement. Emphasize your special ability to tie things up adeptly with little fanfare. Avoid extremes, however.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

You may have some difficulty in trying to produce in large quantity, in developing efficient methods, and in getting along with associates. Reexamine and rectify; even reorganize if necessary.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Some changing situations. Do not be dismayed. Accept them with your inborn adaptability and perceptiveness.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Don't abandon a project just because someone else may not be enthusiastic about it, but listen to their ideas anyway. There COULD be some angles you have overlooked.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Dealings with others may have their ups and downs: YOU remain serene and tolerant. Where things seem to be in a slump, use your imagination to inject new vigor.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Curb a tendency to be overly critical now. Don't look for flaws in every matter that comes up. Emphasize tolerance and steadiness.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Familiar matters favored rather than new enterprises. You may encounter tense feelings in some areas. Keep your balance and look at the bright side of things.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Put inferences, conceded facts and other material together and scrutinize well; then you will be surer when you make decisions and move ahead.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

This will be a day calling for good judgment. Do not let unexpected situations ruffle you and do not let yourself be pushed into erroneous paths by the prodding of others.

YOU BORN TODAY are extremely energetic and highly enthusiastic about anything you undertake, but sometimes drop projects before you have given them a chance to prove themselves. You can achieve the spectacular in some areas; are ingenious, spontaneous, artistic. You could make a great success as a business leader, promotion expert or financier. If drawn to the arts, as you well may be, you will be highly individualistic — especially in music, painting or the theater. You are an extremist in anything you do and people tend to follow your lead so . . . CARE!

Note crime in Ohio cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reports of serious crime tapered off in three Ohio cities in 1973, the FBI reported Friday, but increases were recorded in five other state metropolitan areas.

The FBI's Crime Index has dropped 14 per cent since 1972 in Cleveland, the report showed, and there was a 13 per cent decline in violent crime in Ohio's largest city.

The FBI said its Crime Index dipped 1 per cent in Canton and Cincinnati between 1972 and 1973, and violent crime was off 6 per cent in Canton, 15 per cent in Cincinnati.

Increases in the Crime Index were reported in Akron, Columbus, Parma, Toledo and Youngstown. Percentage figures were not available.

The FBI said serious crime on the national level increased 5 per cent in 1973, after a 4 per cent drop in 1972. The index measures reports of murder, rape, robbery, assault, burglary, larceny and auto theft.

U. S. plans withdrawal

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The United States will begin withdrawing about 8,000 troops from Thailand in mid-May and will send home a number of warplanes, including B52 bombers, Thai and U.S. officials announced today.

The reduction of U.S. forces in Thailand by nearly a fourth will leave about 27,000 American troops in the country, the smallest number since 1966, U.S. spokesmen said.
No deadline was set for completion of the withdrawal.

A number of politically influential Thais have been demanding that the U.S. presence be cut drastically or eliminated to keep from endangering the improvement taking place in Thailand's relations with China. Some members of the U.S. Congress also have urged recently that the American force be reduced.

The U.S. force in Thailand includes about 35,000 servicemen stationed at six air bases and a port facility, about 300 fighters and fighter-bombers and about 50 B52 heavy bombers.

Energy pinch job loses hit 500,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fuel shortages have cost nearly 500,000 Americans their jobs, Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan has told Congress.

However, unemployment will be reduced substantially to normal, Brennan said Friday in a report.

Between 125,000 and 200,000 workers, most of them employed at service stations or by the airlines, lost their jobs during the five-month Arab oil embargo as a direct result of U.S. energy shortages, he said.

Another 300,000 workers were thrown out of work in industries affected indirectly by the energy crisis, as consumer demand declined for such products as automobiles, boats, aircraft and recreational vehicles and such services as hotels and amusements, he said.

The nation's unemployment rate was 4.6 per cent of the work force in October, but rose steadily to 5.2 per cent in January as the oil embargo took hold. It remained steady in February, surprising economists who had predicted a further increase.

Brennan said the impact of energy shortages should ease in the coming months and that any negative impact will be due mainly to higher fuel prices rather than scarcities.

The search for alternative energy sources and increased dependence on domestic fuels is expected to spur the creation of new jobs, the secretary added.

Violent weather hammers nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Foul weather, with snow, gales, tornadoes, thunderstorms and hail, plagued much of the Midwest and eastern third of the nation today and also hit scattered sections of the West.

Snow and freezing rain glazed the Northeast from Pennsylvania and New Jersey into southern New England. New York City was a snarl of stalled traffic Friday evening as three inches of snow crippled the city during rush hour.

The Westchester Airport at White Plains, N.Y., was closed after eight inches of snow clogged the runways. Bridgeport, Conn., was covered with 5 inches of snow.

Travel advisories were posted for much of the region.

A few tornadoes, with hail, heavy rains and high winds, were sighted late Friday night and early today from northern Georgia to eastern Tennessee and Kentucky, but there were no reports of injuries. A tornado watch was in effect for parts of the region during the early morning hours.

Snow and freezing rain also blanketed the northern Midwest, with Wisconsin, Illinois and Iowa tasting winter-like weather despite spring's official arrival over a week ago. Four to six inches of snow whitened northern Minnesota.

Early morning blaze destroys automobile

A Bloomingburg man's car caught fire due to a faulty fuel line on the CCC-Highway, north of the city limits, at 1:18 a.m. Saturday.

The Washington C.H. Fire Department and the Fayette County Sheriff's Department were called to the scene. The car, owned by John Browning, was a complete loss.
